Wilson Says Carranza Has Aided Bandits

HURRY MILITIA, SAYS FUNSTON

MURDER BY HUSBAND; SUICIDE

W. F. Mansfield of Dorchester, in Double Tragedy; Bodies Are Found by His Wife's Mother

William F. Mansfield, a Boston printer, shot and killed his wife, Mary E. Mansfield, at their home, No. 21 Raven street, Dorchester, today, and then turned his revolver upon himself, dying instantly.

A few minutes after the shooting, Mrs. Margaret McCarthy, mother of the slain wife, happened to enter the rear door of the home and discovered her daughter's body on the floor of the kitchen.

Over the wife's body stood two-year-old William Mansfield, youngest of her three children. The baby was partly dressed and crying.

The police thought the mother must have been killed while in the act of dressing the baby.

The eldest child, Margaret, nine, was at school, and did not know of the shooting until she came home at noon. The other child is Walter, aged three years. The husband was seventy-six and his wife was the same age.

For a motive for the husband's deed, the police said they could only believe he must have been temporarily out of his mind.

The authorities were told that yesterday afternoon, before leaving the house for work, Mansfield quarreled with his wife. Then he left.

Finishing his night's work, he went to the home of a relative in Mattapan, returning to his own home about 3 o'clock today.

Neighbors told of hearing "words" between him and his wife, according to the police, who thought that the husband might have renewed his argument of yesterday.

Suddenly came three shots, the first being followed by a woman's shriek.

The third was followed by a sound as of a heavy fall.

An interval of a minute or two and then—a fourth and final shot.

In the interval Mansfield had walked to the bedroom.

An examination disclosed three bullet wounds in the wife's head, one having penetrated the brain through the right eye.

The bullet which Mansfield fired into his own brain was through his left eye.

Mrs. McCarthy, Mansfield's mother-in-law, is a schoolwoman employed in the Stone & Webster building, and it was when she returned to the Raven street home after finishing her night's work that she discovered the bodies.

The police were told that the husband had appeared morose of late, and that he had acted in a peculiar manner. What his worries were, if any, is not known.

Medical Examiner Leary ordered the bodies removed to City Hospital morgue, where he will perform autopsies.

Portland, Me., June 20.—The Republican nomination for Governor of Carl E. Milliken of Island Falls is now assured, as well as the Republican nomination of Colonel Frederick Hale of Portland for United States Senator.

After an all-night count of votes cast at the primaries, with a few smaller towns to be heard from, which will not change the result, the vote for Governor is announced as follows: Carl E. Milliken, 18,087; Fred E. Parkhurst, 13,086; Edward H. Wheeler, 7,397; Timothy F. Callahan, 3,420.

For United States Senator—Frederick Hale, 15,895; Bert M. Fernald, 13,-114; Ira G. Hersey, 12,041.

There were three congressional contests. L. B. Goodall and Wallace H. White received the Republican nomination in the First and Second District respectively. Leonard A. Pierce was nominated by the Democrats in the Fourth District.

Governor Curtis and United States Senator Johnson are renominated by the Democrats without opposition.

White Whale Arrives and Goes Over to Harvard

A white whale, the first of its kind seen hereabouts in a score of years, arrived at the Fish Pier today from Provincetown. The whale was caught yesterday in a fish trap off Cape Cod and killed.

The leviathan measured twenty feet in length and weighed 1,500 pounds.

Parker & Winsor, the owners, having no use for the whale, immediately got in touch with the Harvard Museum, which was glad to buy the specimen for $25.

The mammal will be preserved and stuffed and shortly the albino whale will take its place in the Harvard Museum along side of the night-prowling, nut-eating guacharo and other curios.

The men will board trains about 2 o'clock for Framingham, where the out of town companies of their regiments will have been sent direct.

SALOONS OUSTED AT DULUTH ELECTION

Duluth, Minn., June 20.—Unofficial returns today on yesterday's election show that Duluth voted to oust the saloons by a majority around 500. In the State elections Frank B. Kellogg has a lead in the race for the Republican nomination for the Senate, with former Governor Eberhardt second. Governor J. A. A. Burnquist appeared to have the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Late Mexico Bulletins

Washington, June 20.—Upon the response of the National Guard to the call of the President will depend whether the administration will ask Congress for authority to call an additional force of 150,000 volunteers. Administration leaders say that the President has determined that an "adequate" force shall be assembled to protect the border and to do anything else that may be required.

San Diego, Cal., June 30.—The cruiser San Diego, flagship of the Pacific fleet, is in the harbor here, coaling and taking on provisions, preparatory to sailing either for Guaymas or Mazatlan, Mex. She will be accompanied by the destroyers Hull, Hopkins and Truxtun. All the vessels are under orders to proceed to the west coast of Mexico at top speed.

San Antonio, Tex., June 20.—General Henry A. Greene, commanding that section of the border patrol lying at Del Rio, has asked Major-General Funston for instructions as to what action he shall take relative to the order of the military governor of Coahuila that all the American-owned cattle in the State be seized. It is estimated there are over 100,000 head of American-owned horses, cattle and sheep in Coahuila and the ranch owners are making strong complaints to General Greene.

Pershing Starts Men on New Bandit Hunt

CALL VOLUNTEERS FOR NAVAL SERVICE

Washington, June 20.—A call for volunteers in the navy and the fitting out of more vessels for blockading the coast of Mexico if that action becomes necessary was decided upon today at a conference between President Wilson, Secretary of the Navy Daniels, Senator Tillman and Senator Swanson, both the latter members of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee. "We are going to begin recruiting immediately and expect to fit out a number of additional vessels because of the Mexican situation," said Secretary Daniels, as he left the White House.

OHIO HAS RICHEST SOLDIER IN U. S.

Cincinnati, June 20.—Lieutenant-Colonel William Cooper Procter, aged forty-five, acting colonel of the First Regiment Ohio National Guard, awaiting summons to the Mexican border, is probably the richest soldier in the United States. He is president of the Procter & Gamble Soap Company, draws a salary of at least $75,000 a year and employs several thousand men and women.

Despite Carranza's warning that the American commander must not move any of his troops in any direction except toward the United States border, Brigadier-General Pershing has detailed several detachments to strike out from Namiquipa in pursuit of bandits who are operating in that district.

LINES THREATENED.

Receipt of the news of Brigadier-General Pershing's action was followed here today by a wave of intense interest as to what action would be taken now by General Jacinto Treviño, the Mexican General through whom Carranza issued his warning.

Namiquipa is General Pershing's base of operations, and his prompt and vigorous action was made imperative by the possibility that the bandits were trying to break his lines of communication.

The United States troopers who were sent out in pursuit of the Mexican outlaws were said to have started in a westerly and southerly direction.

PLENTY OF SUPPLIES.

The territory toward which the United States cavalrymen are riding is believed to contain from 12,000 to 17,000 Carranzista soldiers stationed between Namiquipa and Madera.

Even should the hot-headed Mexican generals precipitate hostilities without orders from Mexico City, it is regarded as certain that Brigadier-General Pershing's force could take care of itself. There are enough supplies at Namiquipa for a month, and the United States forces could siege for that long even if the Mexican troops got between them and the border.

The Mexicans now have about 1,200 cavalrymen in Juarez in addition to infantry. They have some artillery and a number of machine guns.

FLAT REFUSAL TO WITHDRAW

San Antonio, Tex., June 20.—General Funston today asked the War Department to hurry "a considerable force" of the National Guard with which to patrol the border from Nogales, Ariz., to the Gulf of Mexico. This explains why urgent orders have been sent to all militia heads in the various States to rush mobilization and equipment of troops. General Funston declined to state just how many troops he has asked for.

Washington, June 20.—Squarely placing responsibility for continuation of the American troops in Mexico on the shoulders of the Carranza government, and accepting the threat that if they are not withdrawn the Mexican government will defend its territory by "an appeal to arms," the United States today flatly refused to withdraw its troops from Mexican territory.

In a lengthy reply to the Carranza note of May 22, the United States, through Secretary Lansing, warns the de facto government that it has adopted a policy that will not be changed under any circumstance.

It rebukes the insinuation that there is any desire of territorial aggrandizement behind the present Mexican policy and in conclusion declares:

"The United States has not sought to evade the duty which has been forced upon it of pursuing bandits who under fundamental principles of municipal northern states have commandeered practically all the food. This while the army is well supplied, the civilian population is on the verge of starvation. One of the objects of General Obregon in taking this action, it was said, was to force Americans into the army.

ARMY READY FOR QUICK AND HARD BLOWS

AMERICANS WARNED.

Warnings to Americans in Mexico to leave the country continue to be sent out daily by attaches of the State Department. It is estimated that there are still 4,000 Americans in Mexico, whose lives would not be worth a straw if hostilities began.

Employes of the Moctezuma Copper Company who have arrived at Douglas, Ariz., report that about 650 Americans are being held prisoners in Cananea by a mob of 25,000 Mexicans.

The Mexicans have not menaced the Americans with death, but refuse to permit them to leave so that the copper mines could continue in operation and Mexican laborers would not be thrown out of work.

This state of affairs has been explained to General P. Elias Calles, military governor of Sonora, who promised to send a train with picked troops to enable Americans to reach the border.

South of Nacozari about 100 Americans have been trying to reach the border. Fresh outbursts of anti-American feeling were reported today in Durango and Chihuahua, which seem to be the bedreds of anti-Americanism.

A dispatch from Douglas says that the Mexican consulate in that town has been closed. It was explained by the Mexican officials that this was not due to fears of war, but because the United States consulate in Nogales, Sonora, had been closed.

FIND CARRANZA DETERMINED TO FORCE U. S. INTERVENTION

By International News Service.

Washington, June 20.—All the machinery of the government was set in motion yesterday for what appears to be inevitable war with Mexico.

The overwhelming mass of reports reaching the State and War Departments tended to show that Carranza is determined to force the United States to intervene.

After three years of indecision, it was apparent today the administration realized that only a miracle can make to aggressive move on Mexican territory, but the first attempt by Mexicans to attack the American forces of the first serious border raid will be the signal for invasion of Mexico in force that will not be brought to a close until the United States has swept Mexico clean of its revolutionary factions and has set up a stable government in that republic.

President Wilson's first move in putting his new Mexican policy in force will be to dispatch to Carranza today a lengthy note rejecting flatly the demand for withdrawal of American troops.

Not only will this note be the last word to Carranza, but it will be backed up by the army the President has on Mexico. The army and navy will be mobilizing for the Mexican campaign. It will then be up to Carranza to say whether the United States Mexico is to be given a chance to exterminate the bandits which have menaced its border and repeatedly flaunted its authority, or whether, by persisting in his attitude of stubborn resistance, he shall force this nation into war.

PEOPLE BACK WILSON.

President Wilson has been indicated by the sweep of the war-like spirit throughout the country. Telegrams poured into the War Department yesterday from patriotic citizens of the United States and there was only doubt as to the fever that pervades the American public on the Mexican question.

To back up the note ready for transmission to Mexico City, the President yesterday asked Congress to pass legislation removing the restriction that prevents the ordering of militia on to foreign soil.

At the same time orders went forward to State militia organizations to recruit their ranks up to war strength.

Preliminary reports from the States today show that, while final arrangements are being made to concentrate the National Guard regiments at State concentration camps to await the call from General Funston, thousands of militia are joining the ranks.

MILITIA STRENGTH GROWS.

If this recruiting campaign continues, army officers believe the National Guard may be recruited to a strength of upwards of 125,000 before all the units are assembled on the Mexican border to join Funston's present army of 50,000 for an invasion of Mexico in force.

Two incidents yesterday convinced administration officials that Carranza is intent on forcing the United States to intervene. One was the attack on a landing party from the cruiser Annapolis by Mexicans at Mazatlan and the arrest of two American officials. The other was the serving notice by Carranza that it will be unsafe for any officers or men of American naval vessels to land on Mexican soil. There was a report in Washington that Carranza plans to anticipate the new note which Washington is preparing to send to Mexico City by sending a written protest to Washington against the mobilization of an American army on the Mexican border.

Carranza, it is understood, purposes to recall the precedent at the beginning of the European war, when Russia mobilized an army on the German frontier, and Germany, insisting that this was an act of war, demanded their demobilization and declared war when Russia refused.

CARRANZA'S DESIRE.

The motive behind this is understood to be Carranza's desire to place the odium on the United States for precipitating hostilities. Carranza also was understood to be preparing to call attention to the fact that four expeditions were sent into Mexico by the United States, one of which still remains.

The United States has been compelled to mobilize an army on its frontier because the Mexican de facto government is unable or unwilling to protect American territory from incursions by Mexican bandits.

The punitive expeditions have been sent into Mexico, it has been pointed out, as a necessity because Carranza has not provided a force to subdue insurrectionary elements which repeatedly have invaded American soil and destroyed American life and property.

Eliseo Arredondo, Carranza's ambassador-designate to Washington, yesterday requested an appointment to see Secretary of State Lansing this afternoon. Whether Mr. Arredondo's mission is to take some step to prevent the threatened invasion of Mexico by American forces or whether he has been ordered to place Carranza's reported mobilization threat before the State Department, is not known.

PLANNING CAMPAIGN.

President Wilson has not given up hope that his action in calling out the National Guard will serve as a warning to Carranza that the United States means business and that this action may be followed by actual hostilities. War College chiefs, however, believe things have gone too far to stop short of intervention, and that are going forward with plans for a combined campaign in Mexico by land and sea.

Secretary Lansing said yesterday that warning to Americans to leave Mexico have been repeated since the call to arms for troops. The safety of Americans is on, with Consul-General Silliman leaving his post at Saltillo with groups of Americans from the interior.

Grave apprehension is felt for the safety of Americans at Mexico City. They have been repeatedly warned to leave, but hundreds have remained. The administration feels itself powerless to go to their aid now, as it would require an expeditionary force of 100,000 men to cut its way from the border to the Mexican capital for the relief of Americans.

Officials are certain that no incidents bringing complications will result from intervention, as they do not believe an attack will be made by Mexicans on foreigners, for whose safety the United States is partly responsible.

Officers of the army general staff and the navy general board are thoroughly convinced that Carranza intends to force war on the United States. They believe his course from the first has demonstrated this. They know that with the army of 25,000 to 30,000 men General Pershing has mobilized in northern Mexico, Carranza long ago could have exterminated the bandits menacing the American frontier.

RAIDS WITH OBJECT.

Officers and officials are convinced that the attack on the Americans at Parral, the repeated raids by Carranza soldiers on the borders and the reinstation of the insulting demonstrations by Mexican troops, coupled with clumsy threats, all were to irritate the United States into aggressive action.

The reason for Carranza's manifest designs to force intervention, these officers believe, is his realization that unless he can unify the Mexican people behind him as a defiance of the United States, he will be forced from power.

President Wilson, it is said, has been brought to realize that there is no intimation on the part of Carranza to force the United States into intervention.

The President insists to the last, however, that the first aggressive move must come from Carranza. At his direction Secretary Lansing delivered yesterday to the Mexican embassy for transmission to Carranza a copy of the call for the National Guard for border duty, and not intended to reinforce the existing expedition in Mexico.

General Funston is understood to have requested that the crack National Guard regiments of New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts be first sent to the border. Secretary Baker yesterday would not admit that such request had been made. He said he would announce any orders to send troops to the border, but no requests that might be made.

Legal officials of the War Department decided there are no grounds upon which National Guard officers or men can be excused from answering the President's call, except physical disability.

Thus far no request to be excused has been received. Word has gone out to the National Guard officers that it will be useless to transmit any such request to the War Department.

NAVAL ORDERS ISSUED.

The Navy Department yesterday ordered two vessels of the Atlantic fleet to Mexican waters to supplement the four vessels already there. The two west coast cruisers have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to go to Mexican waters in addition to the four already there and a fifth new en route.

The main Atlantic and Pacific fleets have been ordered to be ready to steam away at a moment's notice at the first sign of the opening of hostilities between the United States and Mexico.

Thoroughly alarmed over the possibility of an immediate campaign in Mexico, the War Department has sent rush orders and placed advertisements for supplies and complete equipment for an adequate army.

One of the most important needs is horses. These must be purchased. Motor trucks, aeroplanes, material for bridges, telegraph and radio equipment.

The army staff is agreed that one-third of any army to be sent into Mexico should be cavalry instead of one-fourth, the normal proportion. The United States has 15,000 regular cavalry and only about 2,500 reserve horses. Forty to 50,000 cavalry will be needed and in case of war that would demand an immediate supply of about 25,000 new horses.

The rush orders and advertisements have special reference to the National Guard. That organization is not ready for immediate action, notwithstanding federal inspection and supervising of it. It is estimated that it will require fifteen days of preliminary work to whip the militia into shape and that the entire guard will not be ready for a month.

The fact that there are immense contracts in this country for the delivery to foreign nations of many thousands of horses, and that there already has been a serious drain in the supply, is causing some concern.

GOVERNORS ANSWER CALL.

Thirty-one of the forty-eight Governors yesterday sent telegraphic acknowledgment to the War Department of the first mobilization of the National Guard.

Governor Fielder of New Jersey, President Wilson's own State, was one of the nine from whom no response was received. Governor Arthur Capper of Kansas, recognized as a pacifist, sent a high-sword telegram merely acknowledging receipt of the order, but saying nothing about carrying it out.

Governor's Plea That Sixth Mass. Regiment Be Sent to the Front

SECRETARY BAKER, War Department,
Washington, D. C.

Only one brigade and one separate infantry regiment called from Massachusetts, leaving the Sixth Massachusetts at home because its colonel was the junior officer of the first brigade.

The Sixth Regiment was the first to respond to the call in the Civil War. During the Spanish War it again answered the first call. It stands the equal of any of the Massachusetts militia in efficiency and organization, and, at last inspection by Federal officers, had one hundred per cent. in attendance.

The colonel and officers of the entire regiment are very anxious to go to the front. It is a splendid organization and well worthy of utilization by the War Department.

These statements are endorsed by the adjutant-general, also refer you to army officers on duty with the State.

SAMUEL W. McCALL.

U. S. Plans Blockade of Mexican Ports

Washington, June 20.—From high official sources it is learned that the administration contemplates a blockade of every Mexican port on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts within the next few days.

This step will be taken to stop arms, ammunition and other war supplies from reaching the Mexican forces, in the event that Carranza fails to yield completely to the United States and continues making threats and warlike demonstrations.

Rush Pacific Fleet to Mexican Coast

San Diego, Cal., June 20.—Under orders to proceed at top speed for the west coast of Mexico, the cruisers San Diego, flagship of Admiral Winslow, the Denver and the Cleveland steamed from San Diego last night.

The cruiser Chattanooga cleared, south-bound for Acapulco. The Denver will proceed to Salina Cruz, and the San Diego's destination is either Mazatlan or Guaymas, where anti-American demonstrations were reported.

The cruisers Colorado and Pittsburgh were to sail this morning. With their complement of sailors and ship now on, or en route to, the west coast of Mexico, Admiral Winslow will have available for landing forces approximating 4,000 men with more than twenty field pieces, gatlings and other rapid-firing guns.

BOATSWAIN'S MATE SHOT.

Naval officers believe, however, that the fleet commanded will content itself with seizing and holding the principal seaports in the event of war, and that he will not operate to any great extent inland.

Radiograms received from Commander Arthur Kavanagh of the gunboat Annapolis, at Mazatlan, told briefly of the clash between the gunboat's sailors and the Carranzista soldiers. The Governor of Sinaloa, according to Kavanagh's radiogram, declared war on the United States Sunday morning.

Ensign O. O. Kessing and Assistant Paymaster Andrew Mowat were sent ashore with a boat load of blue jackets to parley with the Governor. As the cutter was being made fast, one of the Mazatlan wharves, a group of Mexican soldiers opened fire. Boatswain's Mate I. M. Laughter, who was acting coxswain of the cutter, fell mortally wounded at the first volley. Ensign Kessing then ordered the bluejackets to return the fire. Six Mexican soldiers were killed or wounded before the firing ceased.

The naval officer then carried out his instructions and went to the fortress to see the Governor. He was promptly arrested, but later released when, it is believed, Commander Kavanagh threatened to turn the guns of the Annapolis upon the town.

Anti-American outbreaks have occurred at Guaymas, according to wireless messages to Admiral Winslow from the cruiser Cleveland.

The Military Governor of the Sonora seaport has called every male Mexican to colors, armed them, and is using them in driving Americans out of Empalme, Guaymas and the Yaqui valley country.

Radiograms reported that Americans were being taken out to the Cleveland and the supply steamer Glacier, under cover of the guns of the cruiser. Members of the Richardson Construction Company's Mining Company in the Yaqui valley were stripped of their arms and ammunition by Mexican soldiers and ordered out of the valley. They are now taking refuge aboard the Glacier.

HUNDREDS SEEK TO ENLIST

Hshed today at Framingham by the quartermaster-general's department, and it was planned to carry on rifle practice at Wakefield if the militia remained at Framingham any considerable length of time.

Field Hospital No. 1, Major John D. R. Woodworth commanding, pulled out from the Commonwealth avenue armory shortly after 9:30 this morning, the first of the Massachusetts troops to start for Framingham in compliance with President Wilson's mobilization order.

With jingle of accouterments and groaning of heavily laden wagons, the outfit took the road to the camp where it will be installed and in readiness when the remainder of the militia forces begin to arrive.

Less than two hours later Ambulance Company No. 1, Captain George E. Keenan, got under way with twelve ambulances and three escort wagons, loaded with medicines, bandages and tentage.

Additional orders were received from Washington today ordering out B Company, Signal Corps, and the work of mobilizing the men of this unit was begun at once. In the original orders A Company was the only one called out.

The Fifth, Eighth and Ninth regiments had completed their preparations, and were waiting impatiently for the word which would start them for Framingham. The Second Regiment, the various companies of which are located in the western part of the State, was ordered to reach Framingham by tomorrow, and the artillery and cavalry will start as soon as the full quota of horses can be secured.

All of the outfits report large numbers of recruits, and the majority are now at full war strength as the result of the flocking of young men to the armories with applications for enlistment.

The Commonwealth avenue armory buzzed with industry and excitement today. Early this morning Colonel John H. Sherbourne, commanding the First Battalion of field artillery, consisting of A Battery of Boston and B Battery of Worcester, left the armory in an automobile bound for Framingham to see that the camping sites for his men were satisfactory.

In his absence Major Richard K. Hale was in command of A Battery, 125 members of which reported for duty, with 5 absentees. Ten recruits were accepted, and the battery had secured 102 horses, with bunches of animals for the other horse outfits continuing to come in.

Shortly after eight o'clock the 55 men of Field Hospital No. 1 had finished loading their eight wagons with tents, blankets and other necessaries, and the horses were hooked on, four to each wagon. They were then pulled from the riding ring, where they were loaded, out to Commonwealth avenue, to stand until the starting signal was given.

Owing to the fact that the horses were not mated and strange to each other, considerable difficulty was experienced in starting one team, and it was finally necessary to take out one fractious animal.

PHYSICIANS AND NURSES.

The cavalrymen had the same trouble with one of the leaders of a wagon loaded with feed, bedding and tentage. This horse refused to move, with taken out with his mate and the two pole horses pulled the load from the riding ring to the street, when another animal was secured.

The ambulance company had 79 men and 76 horses for the ambulances and escort wagons. The officers of this unit are physicians and the majority of the men are registered nurses.

Military regulations are in force at the armory, with guards posted about the building and along the horse lines where the steeds secured from sales stables and other places are being tied up upon arrival.

At the East Newton street headquarters of the Ninth, Colonel Logan reported his men ready to start at any time, and that a large number of recruits had been secured, bringing the total strength of the regiment above a war footing.

At the Cambridge armory, the headquarters of the Eighth Regiment, the men of A, C and E companies, the machine gun and attached sanitary companies, were awakened early this morning by bugle call and began the regulation routine work. After setting up drill, mess was served and the final touches were put on the boxes and company baggage. The regimental band was present and furnished music while the men were put through their drills. They also secured a number of recruits, bringing the regiment up to war strength.

Practically the same conditions obtained at the Fifth Regiment headquarters in Charlestown, the men impatiently awaiting the word to entrain.

SCHEDULE WORKED OUT.

Major H. Bert Knowles, Q. M. C., had completed arrangements for transporting the infantry troops to Framingham, all other units going over the road. The schedule for transporting the men was worked out with the assistance of railroad and railway officials, and provided for immediate entraining.

It was later discovered that the federal government does not recognize trolley cars as means of transportation, so that it was necessary to rearrange the entire schedule and transport the troops entirely by train, using the Boston & Maine, Boston & Albany and New Haven roads.

Captain Elon F. Tandy at Framingham announced that everything was in readiness to receive the troops, with the grass cut, water pipes laid and sanitary arrangements made. The hospital corps arrived shortly after noon, followed by the ambulance corps and B Battery of Worcester, which, in command of Captain J. F. J. Herbert, was due at the training grounds this evening.

After a conference with Brigadier-General E. Leroy Sweetser, Adjutant-General Cole sent a telegram to Major-General Leonard Wood in command of the Department of the East, stating that Massachusetts needs $14,000 more for expenses of mobilization for five days from the time of the call. This telegram is as follows:

Commanding General, Eastern Department: Replying to your telegram of June 19, approximate funds required by United States disbursing officer for the mobilization of the organized militia of this State are as follows:

Travel rations, $14,400; garrison rations, $14,400; fuel, $300; forage, $3,500; hiring wagons, $8,000.

Transportation requests needed as follows for the following cities and towns to Framingham. (One company in each place except where otherwise noted):

"Adams, Attleboro, Boston—Headquarters Second Brigade, headquarters and four companies Fifth Infantry, headquarters and ten companies Ninth Infantry.

"Cambridge, headquarters and six companies Eighth Infantry; Clinton, Everett, Gloucester, Greenfield, Haverhill, Hingham, Holyoke, Hudson, Lawrence, two companies; Lowell, Lynn, two companies; Malden, Medford, Natick, Newton, Northampton, Orange, Pittsfield, Plymouth, Quincy, Salem, Somerville, two companies; Springfield, headquarters and six companies Second Infantry; Waltham, Winthrop, Woburn, Worcester, four companies.

"Will need these requests tonight. Mobilize at Framingham tomorrow.

(Signed)

"COLE, Adjutant-General."

General Cole stated that the men were all fully equipped, and could, if necessary, leave for the border at once. He said that there are at present 7,500 men in the troops now mobilized, an increase of 1,000 since yesterday. Fifteen hundred recruits are expected to be added today.

COULD SAVE $2,000.

The adjutant-general decided that he could save $2,000 on hay by not sending the cavalry to Framingham until tomorrow. Their horses can be kept at the armories tonight, and it will not be necessary to purchase feed for them until they arrive at Framingham.

All the railroads are mobilized and have the schedules for the movement of troop trains worked out. It is comparatively easy to move the infantry, their trains travelling solidly without change of cars from any point in New England to the Mexican border. The troop trains will have the right of way over all others and will be subject to the directions of the Secretary of War.

President Spalding of the telephone company stated today that employes of the company in the militia will receive full pay.

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.

Washington, June 20.—General Carranza must make the next move. The United States under no circumstances will change its present attitude toward Mexico.

If Carranza is willing to accept the position assumed by the administration and curb his war-anxious forces all may be well. But any attempt to eject the American troops now in Mexico from their positions or to interfere with their efforts to capture and kill bandit raiders will be sternly punished.

That was the position of the United States today. Mobilization of the organized militia was being hurried in every way. General Funston has disposed of his forces along the border so that points against which any general attack might be planned are protected. The Atlantic and Pacific fleets are prepared for immediate call at their general stations.

Photograph shows Massachusetts Field Hospital No. 1, Major Woodworth commanding, pulling out today from the new Commonwealth armory in Allston, on its way to the State's mobilization point. The hospital company is the first of the State troops to leave for Framingham.

More Soldiers Hasten Weddings Before Leaving

Cupid, as well as Uncle Sam, is mobilizing his forces as a result of the call to Mexico.

At the City Hall registrar's office, today, two more couples asked permission to be married at once. When told they must set permission from some judge of the court, they went in all haste to obtain necessary permits. The first super pair to apply for a marriage license were Thomas T. Kennedy of No. 242 Dover street, teamster-soldier in the Ninth, and Josephine E. Hynes, eighteen, of 252 Dover street, laundry helper. They wished to be married in fifteen minutes.

Another couple who closely followed the first were David L. Page of No. 676 Tremont street, another militiaman, and Miss Katheryn T. Stanton of No. 129 Minden street, Jamaica Plain.

Villa Band Wipes Out Carranza Force

By International News Service.

El Paso, Texas, June 20.—Villistas, advancing north along the old National Railway of Mexico, have wiped out the Carranza garrison at Corralitos, south of Jiminez.

Information to this effect has reached General Bell here. Sixty Carranza troopers are declared to have been killed and the Villista force, numbering 250, was said to be contemplating an alliance with other bands for a threatened attack on Jiminez.

FLAT REFUSAL TO WITHDRAW TROOPS IN U. S. REPLY TO MEXICO

REBUKE TO CARRANZA FOR REIGN OF BANDITS

and international law ought to be pursued and arrested and punished by Mexican authorities.

"Whenever Mexico will assume and effectively exercise that responsibility the United States, as it has many times before publicly declared, will be glad to have this obligation fulfilled by the de facto government of Mexico.

"If, on the contrary, the de facto government is pleased to ignore this obligation and to believe that in case of a refusal to relieve these troops there is no further recourse than to defend its territory by an appeal to arms, the government of the United States would surely be lacking in sincerity and friendship if it did not frankly impress upon the de facto government that the execution of this threat will lead to the gravest consequences.

"While this government would deeply regret such a result, it cannot recede from its settled determination to maintain its national rights and to perform its full duty in preventing further invasions of the territory of the United States and in removing the peril which Americans along the international boundary have borne so long with patience and forbearance."

The note says:

Department of State, Washington, June 20, 1916.

Sirs:—I have read your communication, which was delivered to me on May 22, 1916, under instructions of the chief executive of the de facto government of Mexico on the subject of the presence of American troops in Mexican territory, and I would be wanting in candor if I did not before making answer to the allegations of fact and the conclusions reached by your government, express the surprise and regret which have been caused this government by the discourteous tone and temper of this last communications of the de facto government of Mexico.

The government of the United States has view with deep concern and increasing disappointment the progress of the revolution in Mexico. Continuous bloodshed and disorders have marked its progress.

For three years the Mexican Republic has been torn with civil strife, the lives of American and other aliens have been sacrificed, vast properties developed by American capital and enterprise have been destroyed or rendered non-productive, bandits have been permitted to roam at will through the territory contiguous to the United States and to seize, without punishment or without effective attempt at punishment, the property of Americans, while the lives of citizens of the United States have ventured to remain in Mexican territory or to return there in pursuit of their interests have been taked, and in some cases barbarously taken and the murderers have neither been apprehended nor brought to justice.

It would be difficult to find in the annals of the history of Mexico conditions more deplorable than those which have existed there during these recent years of civil war.

OUTRAGE AFTER OUTRAGE.

It would be tedious to recount instance after instance, outrage after outrage, atrocity after atrocity to illustrate the true nature and extent of the widespread condition of lawlessness and violence which have prevailed.

During the past nine months in particular the frontier of the United States along the lower Rio Grande has been thrown into a state of constant apprehension and turmoil because of frequent and sudden incursions into American territory and depredations and murders on American soil by Mexican bandits, who have taken the lives and destroyed the property of American citizens, sometimes carrying American citizens across the international boundary with the booty seized.

American garrisons have been attacked at night, American soldiers killed and their equipment and horses stolen. American ranches have been raided, property stolen and destroyed and American trains wrecked and plundered.

The attacks on Brownsville, Red House Ferry, Progreso Postoffice and Las Peladas, all occurring during September last, are typical. In these attacks on American territory Carranzista adherents, and even Carranzista soldiers, took part in the looting, burning and killing. Not only were these murders characterized by such fiendish brutality, but uncivilized acts of mutilation were perpetrated.

Representations were made to General Carranza and he was emphatically requested to put a stop to these reprehensible acts in a section which he has long claimed to be under the complete domination of his authority.

Notwithstanding these repetitions and the promise of General Nafarrete to prevent attacks along the international boundary, in the following month of October a passenger train was wrecked by bandits and several persons killed, seven miles north of Brownsville, and an attack was made upon United States troops at the same place several days later.

Since these attacks leaders of the bandits, well known to both Mexican civil and military authorities as well as to American officers, have been enjoying with impunity the liberty of towns of northern Mexico.

So far has the indifference of the de facto government to these atrocities gone that some of these leaders, as I am advised, have received not only the protection of that government, but encouragement and aid as well.

Depredations upon American persons and property within Mexican jurisdiction have been still more numerous.

This government has repeatedly requested in the strongest terms that the de facto government safeguard the lives and homes of American citizens and furnish the protection, which international obligation imposes, to American interests in the border region states of Tamaulipas, Nuevo Leon, Coahuila, Chihuahua and Sonora and also in the States to the South.

For example on January third troops were requested to punish the bands of outlaws which looted the Cloudman mining property, eighty miles west of Chihuahua, but no effective results came from this request.

SLAIN IN COLD BLOOD.

During the following week the bandit, Villa, with his bands of about 500 men, was operating without opposition between Ojinaga and Santa Ysabel, a fact well known to Carranzista authorities.

Meanwhile a party of unfortunate Americans started by train from Chihuahua to visit the Cusi mines, after having received assurances from the Carranzista authorities in the State of Chihuahua that the country was safe and that a guard on the train was not necessary.

The Americans held passports or safe-conducts, issued by authorities of the de facto government. On January 10th the train was stopped by Villa bandits and eighteen of the American party were stripped of their clothing and shot in cold blood, in what is now known as "The Santa Ysabel massacre."

General Carranza stated to the agent of the Department of State that he had issued orders for the immediate pursuit, capture and punishment of those responsible for this atrocious crime and appealed to this government and to the American people to consider the difficulties of according protection along the railroad where the massacre occurred.

Assurances were also given by Mr. Arredondo, presumably under instructions from the de facto government, that the murderers would be brought to justice and that steps would also be taken to remedy the lawless conditions existing in the State of Durango. It is true that Villa, Castro and Lopez were publicly declared to be outlaws and subject to apprehension and execution, but so far as known, only a single man personally connected with this massacre has been brought to justice by Mexican authorities.

Within a month after this barbarous slaughter of inoffensive Americans it was notorious that Villa was operating within twenty miles of Chihuahua, and publicly stated that his purpose was to destroy American lives and property.

Despite repeated and insistent demands that military protection should be furnished to Americans, Villa openly carried on his operations, constantly approaching closer and closer to the border. He was not intercepted, nor were his movements impeded by troops of the de facto government, and no effectual attempt was made to frustrate his hostile designs against Americans. In fact, as I am informed, while Villa and his band were slowly moving toward the American frontier in the neighborhood of Columbus, New Mexico, not a single Mexican soldier was seen in his vicinity.

Yet the Mexican authorities were fully cognizant of his movements, for on March 6, as General Gavira publicly announced, he advised the American military authorities of the outlaw's approach to the border, so that they might be prepared to prevent him from crossing the boundary.

THE COLUMBUS RAID.

Villa's unhindered activities culminated in the unprovoked and cold-blooded attack upon American soldiers and citizens in the town of Columbus on the night of March 9th. The details of which do not need repetition here in order to refresh your memory with the heinousness of the crime.

After murdering, burning and plundering Villa and his bandits fleeing south passed within sight of the Carranzista military post at Casas Grades, and no effort was made to stop him by the officers and garrison of the de facto government stationed there.

In the face of these depredations, not only on American lives and property, on Mexican soil, but on American soldiers, citizens and homes on American territory, the perpetrators of which General Carranza was unable or, possibly, considered it inadvisable to apprehend or punish, the United States had no recourse other than to employ force to disperse the bands of Mexican outlaws, who were with increasing boldness systematically raiding across the international boundary.

The marauders engaged in the attack on Columbus were driven back across the border by American cavalry, and subsequently

The New Home Treatment for Ugly, Hairy Growths

(Beauty Secret)

Here is a simple yet very effective method for removing hair and fuzz from the face, neck and arms. Cover the objectionable hairs with a paste made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. Leave this on for 2 or 3 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs have vanished. No pain or inconvenience attends this treatment, but results will be certain if you are sure to get real delatone.—Advertisement.

BANDITS AIDED BY CARRANZA, SAYS U. S.

as soon as a sufficient force to cope with the band could be collected, were pursued into Mexico in an effort to capture or destroy them.

Without co-operation or assistance in the field on the part of the de facto government, despite repeated requests by the United States and without apparent recognition on its part of the desirability of putting an end to these systematic raids, or of punishing the chief perpetrators of the crimes committed, because they menaced the good relations of the two countries, American forces pursued the lawless bands as far as Parral, where the pursuit was halted by the hostility of Mexicans, presumed to be loyal to the de facto government, who arrayed themselves on the side of outlaws and became in effect the protectors of Villa and his band.

In this manner, and for these reasons, have the American forces entered Mexican territory. Knowing fully the circumstances set forth, the de facto government cannot be blind to the necessity which compelled this government to act, and yet it has seen fit to recite its unfriendly sentiments of hostility toward the expedition and to impugn to this government ulterior motives for the continued presence of American troops on Mexican soil.

DETAILS, NOT RESULTS.

It is charged that these troops crossed the frontier without first obtaining the consent or permission of the de facto government. Obviously, as immediate action alone could avail, there was no opportunity to reach an agreement (other than that of March 1916, now repudiated by General Carranza) prior to the entrance of such an expedition into Mexico if the object in view was to be attained.

Subsequent events and correspondence have demonstrated to the satisfaction of this government that General Carranza would not have entered into any agreement providing for an effective plan for the capture and destruction of the Villa bands.

While the American troops were merely confined to operations in pursuit of the raiders, it was the form and nature of the agreement that compelled the attention of General Carranza, rather than the practical object which it was to attain—the number of limitations that could be imposed upon the American forces "to protect their progress rather than the obstacles that would be raised to prevent the escape of the outlaws."

It was General Carranza who suspended through your note of April 12 all discussions and negotiations for an agreement along the lines of the protocols between the United States and Mexico concluded during the period 1914-1916, under which the two countries had so successfully restored peaceful conditions on their common boundary. It must be mentioned here that, notwithstanding the statement in your note that the American government gave no answer to the note of the 12th April" this note was replied to on April 14th, when the department instructed Mr. Rogers by telegraph to deliver this government's answer to General Carranza.

Shortly after this reply the conferences between Generals Scott, Funston and Obregon began at El Paso during which they signed on May 3 a project of a memorandum and referendum regarding the withdrawal of American troops.

As an indication of the alleged bad faith of the American government, you state that though General Scott declared in this memorandum that the "protection and dispersion of the Villa band "had been accomplished," yet American forces are not withdrawn from Mexico.

It is only necessary to read the memorandum, which is in the English language, to ascertain that this is merely a misstatement, for the memorandum states that "The American punitive expeditionary forces have destroyed or dispersed many of the lawless elements, the bandits, . . . or have driven them far into the interior of the republic of Mexico," and further, that the United States forces were then "carrying on a vigorous pursuit of such remnants numbers of bandits or lawless elements as may have escaped."

ASSURANCE RENEWED.

The content of your note gives the impression that the object of the expedition being admittedly accomplished, the United States cannot agree in the memorandum to begin the withdrawal of its troops. The memorandum shows, however, that it was not alone on account of partial dispersion of the bandits that it was decided to begin the withdrawal of American forces, but equally on account of the assurances of the Mexican government that their forces were "at the present time being augmented and strengthened to such an extent that they will be able to prevent any disorders occurring in Mexico that would in any way menace American territory" and that they would "continue in diligently pursue, capture or destroy any lawless bands of bandits that may still exist or hereafter exist in the northern part of Mexico" and that it would "make a proper distribution of any of its forces as may be necessary to prevent the possibility of invasion of American territory from Mexico."

It was because of these assurances and because of General Scott's confidence that they would be carried out that he entered in the memorandum that the American forces would be "gradually withdrawn."

It is to be noted that, while the American government was willing to ratify this agreement, General Carranza refused to do so, as General Obregon stated, because, among other things it imposed improper conditions upon the Mexican government.

MEN ESCAPE FROM PRISON IN RHODE ISLAND; STILL AT LARGE

Providence, June 20.—The escape of eight prisoners from the House of Correction, Cranston, R. I., some time Sunday, has caused intense excitement among people living in the surrounding country.

A majority of these prisoners had come to the House of Correction from the State Prison and are considered dangerous.

The men are at large and no clew has been found as to their present whereabouts.

Thomas H. O'Neil of the Public Institutions Commission has called for an immediate investigation, while police are searching the region for the missing convicts.

O'Neil has stated that conditions both in the State Prison and in the House of Correction are most unsatisfactory. He maintains that in an institution built to accommodate 125, 250 and 300 are quartered. This large number of men with a small corps of guards makes it possible, according to O'Neil, for prisoners often to walk out unnoticed.

It is now believed that the eight men who made their get-away Sunday scaled the twenty-foot wall and dropped to the other side an hour or two before their absence was known.

The State Prison, which is within a hundred yards of the House of Correction, is even in worse condition, says O'Neil, than its neighbor. Prisoners are quartered in hallways, on stairs, and in every possible available space. When the number becomes impossible the overflow is sent to the House of Correction, where, because of numbers, strict discipline is impossible.

The men who have gone are: Elmer Wilson, Joseph Connor, William Carroll, William Gardner, Stephen Carran, Phillip Conyle, Louis Mushnick and Arthur L. Steinberg. They were serving terms ranging all the way from three months to three years.

It was said little use is declared Commissioner O'Neil, "in incarcerating law breakers, if they are put under little discipline, and allowed to escape without great difficulty. I shall call for a rigid investigation into the condition of all of our institutions in order to discover where the trouble lies."

Don't Let a Cold Get a Good Start

The way to check a cold is to fight it from the first. Even the most mildly affected are easily concerned if attacked early enough. Colds may lead to asthma, bronchial troubles and pulmonary affections. In the treatment of these colds of the first needs is to build up body resistance.

Eckman's Alterative often has demonstrated its self-upbuilding, as a treatment for the troubles named, it has been used for over thirty years. And in many instances it has effected lasting relief.

As with any other medicine, it should be regarded only as a first aid to right care and hygienic living—and a safe one, for it contains no narcotics, opiates or habit-forming drugs of any sort. Sold by all druggists. Sold in Boston by Eckman-Jaynes Drug Stores and leading druggists.

U. S. ORDERS NEW FLEET OF PLANES

Dayton, O., June 20.—That the United States government has but one aeroplane under construction was the assertion of the officials of the Wright Aeroplane Manufacturing Company. This is being built at the Navy Yard at Washington.

It is understood, however, that the government has placed an order for ten or twelve machines with a New Jersey concern. These are to be of the latest pattern.

"We are in a position to accept orders for as many machines as the United States government could, within reason, need," said one of the company officials. "After a period of thirty days we could deliver at the rate of two a day and continue to build them indefinitely."

"Single-Cure" Tires which are— —NEVER Over-Cured

GOODRICH Fabric Tires of today are made by the same "Single-Cure" Process as in 1900.

Such Process demands Skill,—Expert Workmanship,—that Accuracy of treatment which proceeds chiefly from a long Experience with it.

The long-experienced Goodrich Operator knows the precise temperature, and temperamental conditions of Fabric and Rubber,—which admit of Vulcanizing these two factors together AT A SINGLE "CURING."

So, he can, and does, SINGLE-Vulcanize them, without producing the internal "Blisters" and other hidden "defects," that alone excuse the double-cost, and double-risk, of "Double-Cure" or Vulcanization on Vulcanization.

NATURALLY, the largest Rubber Factory in the world should have (out of its 47 year Experience) developed the ablest Operatives, as well as the most efficient and economical Processes.

Naturally, too, this Experience and Efficiency (coupled with a 50% greater Output of TIRES, for Pleasure Cars and Trucks combined, than that of any other Rubber Concern in America), produces such Volume of Tires at the lowest feasible Cost, for such Quality.

GOODRICH Ideals, Principles and long-proven Business Policies, result in the benefit of that lower cost being given TO CONSUMERS.

Because,—47 years' experience in Mfg. and Selling Rubber Goods demonstrates that "Time" levels down all Excess Profits.

It does that through limiting VOLUME of Output.

And,—VOLUME is the chief factor in reducing Cost of Production.

THE Maximum Value, to Consumers, with a fair profit to both Dealer and Manufacturer!

That Goodrich Policy has been Father to the REPEAT-ORDERS which have for 47 years maintained the B. F. Goodrich Co. Factory, at Akron, O., as the largest Rubber Factory in the World, and the most conservatively successful.

From that Policy, consistently worked out, proceeds the relatively Low Prices quoted below, on the highest-grade Fabric Tires that Money and Skill can build.

Let no one "CONVERSE" you out of the advantage these Mfg. Economies should mean to YOU.

AUSTRIAN ARMY NEAR COLLAPSE

Petrograd, June 20.—The Austrians have retired twenty-five miles over the entiren Volhynian and Galicia front, except in the immediate region of Tarnopol.

The Russian seizure of Czernowitz the flight of the southern Austrian army toward the Carpathians and the closing in movement upon Lemberg from two directions have brought conditions to a point where, it is believed here, the Austrian armies must either make a final stand, or by their further retreat automatically compel a general retirement of the German army positions which they have held against the Russians for nearly a year.

Such a stand, military officials here believe, will be an impossibility, as the separated Austrian armies are unable to communicate with each other and, all available troops and reserves having been called up, a quick rehabilitation of the crippled armies of the Austrians is manifestly unlikely.

EXPECT SPEEDY TRIUMPH.

The prevailing confidence in the speedy consummation of a Russian triumph over Austria is reflected in all the comments of the newspapers.

The Petrograd Gazette says: "The thought we have all lived with since the beginning of the war—a final victory over Austria—is now at hand. Soon the last notes of the swan song of the dual monarchy will be heard."

The Austrians are concentrating their forces on an attempt to ward off a Russian advance on Lemberg, but according to the latest dispatches the Russian troops pressing along the Dubno-Lemberg Railway, with Radzivikoff well in their rear, are close upon the Galician frontier town of Brody, which is nearly half way to Lemberg.

The other Russian advance in Lemberg is being directed from a point north of Buczacz toward Halicz, from which latter town the road to Lemberg is easy and almost unfortified.

The effect of the advance of these two lines is to place in great danger the Austrian centre near the Tarnopol extended position, and an Austrian collapse here is considered inevitable by the military observers.

SEVER CONNECTIONS.

The occupation of Czernowitz by the Russians has severed connections between the northern and southern armies. It has also enabled the Russians to establish direct connections from the frontier to Sniatyn by the shortest and most convenient route, which will greatly facilitate the Russian progress toward Kolomea, and, by obviating further the necessity of a turning movement, allow the Russian southern forces to advance solidly from the Czernowitz region westward.

According to Colonel Shumsky the military critic of the Bourse Gazette, the taking of Czernowitz means the Russian occupation of the whole of Bukowina, since there are no defensive lines on the way to the Carpathians.

It is said to be apparent from all recent reports that the first shock of the Russian attack has subsided and that the period of lightning assaults, terminating in the wholesale capture of prisoners and the penetration of the Austrian lines, will now be succeeded by a steady an stubborn struggle.

WAR SUMMARY

The seven-league-booted Russian army, for some reason as yet unrevealed by Petrograd, finds itself menacing the important points of Lemberg and Kovel. But Petrograd's official details of progress made fail to bear out any immediate fears on the part of the folk of either Lemberg or Kovel.

The application of the "map test" to the Petrograd official statements is still advisable. As a matter of fact, according to the map, the Russians are still a good step from either Lemberg or Kovel—a good step for even a seven-league-booted army.

The Czar's forces have gained chiefly around the captured Czernowitz.

The defeat of German attacks is announced from Verdun and Paris further tells of the violent bombardment of the Chattancourt section and the southern slopes of Dead Man Hill.

Despite Petrograd's horoscope of an immediate Austrian collapse, Franz Josef seems able to keep up his offensive on the Italian front. Here the fighting is fierce, and Rome reports the repulse of numerous Austrian attacks.

Of hardly less interest than the actual fighting is the recurrence of peace talk. Last week it was stated that the secret session of the French Chamber of Deputies was to discuss peace among other things, and now there is a report that one of the important subjects before the so-called economic conference in Paris was peace.

NIGHT ATTACKS OF GERMANS REPULSED

By International News Service.

London, June 20.—German troops renewed their assaults against Hill No. 321 on the Verdun front last night, but all attacks were repulsed, the French War Office announced today.

Hill 321 lies to the east of the Meuse River and south of the Haudromont quarries.

The French communique states that the Germans have directed a new bombardment of the most violent character against the French positions in Vaux wood, Chapitre wood and at Chattoncourt.

The text of the French communique follows:

"On the right bank of the Meuse the Germans attacked three times during the night our positions northwest of Hill No. 321, but all these assaults were checked by our machine gun and artillery fire.

"The bombardment has become intense in the region of Vaux wood and Chapitre wood, as well as the Chattoncourt sector west of the Meuse.

"In the Vosges a surprise attack directed by the enemy against one of our advanced saps in the region of Metzeralbach, south of Thann, was repulsed."

WOMEN PARADERS IN FOOD PROTEST

Amsterdam, Holland, June 20.—Another demonstration against the high prices of food was held here. A large procession composed mainly of women, paraded the streets. The Telegraaf announces that the police have prohibited all further street demonstrations.

AMERICAN AGENTS FINED IN LONDON

LORD HARDING IN DIPLOMATIC POST

By International News Service.

London, June 20.—Lord Harding today assumed his duties as Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. He succeeded Sir Arthur Henderson.

Report Crisis in British Cabinet on Irish Question

London, June 20.—There was persistent reports of an acute division in the Cabinet over the Irish question when Parliament reconvened today. That high feeling still exists in Ireland, especially over the execution of the revolutionary leaders, is shown by the Sinn Fein demonstrations in Dublin.

David Lloyd-George, who was chosen by the Cabinet to pacify Ireland, has made progress, but it is understood that the plan he has evolved to obtain accord between the radical Nationalists and the Ulster Unionists has met with strong opposition of one section of the government.

It is likely that the government will face interpolations from members of Commons upon the treatment of rebel prisoners.

STUDENT DENIES HE WAS IN CRASH

Esleeck S. Sherman, a Harvard student, reported to have been an occupant of the automobile that was wrecked in Saugus Friday night, in a letter written from "Eastcliff," Rye, N. Y., declared: "It is not true that I was in the automobile. I arrived shortly after the accident occurred and helped release those who were pinned under the overturned machine."

AIRMEN ACTIVE ON WEST FRONT

London, June 20.—On the west front there has been further great activity in the air, bombarding operations behind both fronts being carried on extensively. Berlin reports that two British and one French aeroplane were shot down.

GERMAN AIRSHIPS BOMB PRISONERS

Paris, June 20.—German aeroplanes dropped a large number of projectiles upon a village to the south of Verdun where a camp of prisoners was located. A number of German prisoners were killed or wounded.

FRENCH LOSS 165,000 IN VERDUN BATTLES

Geneva, June 20.—The French losses around Verdun in killed and wounded amount to approximately 165,000 to June 5. These losses have occurred on a front which is not more than thirteen miles in length.

The Germans have lost about 415,000 men, it is stated here. Statements of prisoners, captured documents and other sources are the basis of the estimates.

Every Day Foods

MILK, VEGETABLES AND WARD'S BREAD

WHY is milk so highly regarded as a healthful food for young and old?

One important reason is because milk contains the correct proportion of calcium salt—that mineral element so necessary for the health and development of the growing child, so essential to bone and muscle building, and so beneficial for the human system.

Why are certain vegetables, like spinach, cabbage, carrots, peas, beans and others, so well recommended by physicians and food dietary experts?

Also, because these vegetables contain calcium salts or lime salts.

Arkady Yeast Food (U. S. Registered Trade Mark, issued May 9th, 1916), a preparation approved and protected by United States patents, and now used in making WARD'S BREAD, contains these lime salts so valuable to human health. Because of this, WARD'S BREAD has very special merit as a healthful and nutritious food, and is without doubt or question the best bread made or offered for sale to the people of Boston and vicinity.

Our long experience in bread making has taught us that city water varies in different localities, being hard in some places and soft in others, according to the amount of mineral salt, a condition which makes a decided difference in bread. Hard water, we know, is best under all circumstances for bread making. The water used in making WARD'S BREAD is first filtered to take out the organic matter found in all city water. After the water is purified, we harden it by the addition of Arkady Yeast Food, which is a compound of mineral salts that correct and modify the water to the best standard for bread making.

Arkady Yeast Food, however, does more than that. It reduces the amount of yeast required by more than half, and every bread-making housewife knows that less yeast means the absence of yeasty flavor, sourness and the production of a better tasted loaf. Arkady Yeast Food also shortens the fermentation period, conserves a greater proportion of the food value and natural flavor of the wheat and produces a more nutritious and healthful loaf than can be made under any other known method.

Great sums of money and years of patient effort have been spent in scientific research to make WARD'S BREAD the incomparable loaf it is today—pure, healthful and with a maximum measure of food value. A fortune has been invested in perfecting processes, devices and methods to make its quality and uniformity supreme. Today it represents the final word in the scientific making of bread, and furthermore, it is not only healthful and a builder of bone, teeth, muscle and tissue, but it is also 100% PURE and 100% CLEAN.

Your money can buy no food value the equal of WARD'S BREAD.

Made every day for the people of Boston and vicinity in the Ward Bakery at Cambridge where visitors are always welcome.

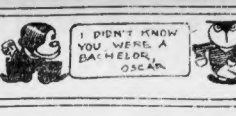
BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS



Sox-Yanks Prepared ChampsReadytoClimb

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

A good night's rest after the long ride from Chicago put the World's Champions on edge for the first game of the series with the Highlanders, which opens this afternoon at Fenway Park. So far the team has been unable to get very far beyond the .500 mark this season, there having been many reasons for their failure. First, their pitchers all seemed to slump at the time, and on top of this disastrous condition injury and illness further weakened them upon the eve of their first western trip.

Taking two men out of any team—two regulars, is a pretty severe handicap, and to the extent that the two stars were missing in the two men, and the handicap is increased. The loss of the services of Hooper and Harry was in no small degree responsible for the weak showing of the team after the trip was made, but just closed the pitchers were none too strong.

CLOSE TO PAR.

The team has however rounded into something like its 1915 form so that the games to be played with the Highlanders and Athletics should prove worth while. Manager Carrigan will probably have Jack Barry back at second base. This should steady the team considerably, for Barry is a remarkable player of great experience. He is reported to have recovered from the effects of a severe cold that has kept him out of the lineup. With the return of Barry the regular field will be in position, and with Hooper in right field it should look a whole lot better than for some weeks.

The principal thing has been the weakened condition of the pitching staff. The unseasonable weather worried great injury upon the champions, more so than in the case of any other club in the American League. Shore is just about ready to work as he is capable of working. The loss of this great pitcher's services for so long a time has hurt the club's chances. He is reported to be ready to deliver. Mays is another twirler who has been under the weather, as has Foster.

PITCHERS READY.

Leonard and Ruth, with these three named, are likely to furnish the kind of pitching which distinguished the champions from other teams. The club has recently displayed flashes of its old-time ability and fielding, which will be essential to the success of the team in this season's race where the teams appear to be so closely matched.

The baseball followers of Greater Boston have had to struggle along under probably the most discouraging weather conditions ever. The rain has played havoc with the receipts in both leagues, and when it hasn't rained it has been too cold for the sport. With good baseball weather and an improvement in the work of the clubs the attendance is bound to increase.

The western cities, which a year ago gave but light receipts, have so far this season been surprisingly strong for the game, so that from a financial standpoint the western invasion by the eastern clubs has been one of profit. Should weather conditions favor for the next four or five weeks the whole appearance of the game will change, from small crowds to large, and the baseball will be better throughout the leagues.

The Champions could not be said to have climbed on the western trip coming back with but five victories in the nine games played, still they are but a few games behind the leaders and the climbing should be easier at home than on the road. After the games with the Highlanders and Athletics they go away for a few days, the Braves having the games locally during the latter part of the month and over the Fourth of July.

President Lannin expressed himself as confident that his team would round into winning form and points to the improved condition of his pitchers as one of the reasons.

"I think Manager Carrigan and the boys have done very well considering the condition of the men," said he. "While the team is not quite as strong in percentage as it was last season at this time, still I consider the position they occupy one from which they can readily climb. They are but five games behind the leaders.

LANNIN LIKES TEAM.

"The boys haven't had any weather as yet. When they do get real Summer weather it will help them. The team looks good to me, and I have every confidence in their ability to decliver.

The trip of the Champions has been fairly successful, the attendance in the Western cities being far greater than at this time in 1915.

Boston hasn't had much of the right kind of weather for big crowds at ball games, but with the hot Summer days to come and an improvement in the team, the outlook of the next long home stay of the champions is bright.

CHANGES DUE, SAYS EVERS

Life for Braves Just One Rain Storm After Another, Remarks Eminent Trojan.

New York, June 20.—According to that eminent Trojan, John J. Evers, life for the Braves is just one thunderstorm after another, says the New York Sun today. The Keystone King expressed his sentiments in no uncertain fashion.

"Rain!" said Evers. "Why, do you suppose for a moment you ever saw rain? This stuff you're getting in New York isn't rain. It's a light mist. Come to Boston some time—any time—if you wish to see the real article.

"And that's the reason," continued the Trojan, "that good clubs like the Braves and Giants are taking the rubs of a lot of inferior clubs. There'll be a reckoning, never fear, unless this Winter weather hangs over till October.

"Philadelphia is no stronger than it was a year ago," said Evers—"if it is even that strong. It was a cheap pennant Moran won in 1915. Boston, New York, Brooklyn and Chicago are all in far better shape than a year ago, while the Reds are a club that is likely to break loose if Buck Herzog can get his men to give them his best efforts. The old race has hardly started yet.

GOOD PLAYERS TEMPERAMENTAL

"Good ball players are more or less temperamental. They can't play baseball in football weather. The many interruptions from cold and rain have set the veterans back about where they were when they reported for spring training. That's why the good hitters aren't hitting. The season so far has been a joke. You may throw all the form sheets so far into the scrap heap.

Evers insists that the Braves will have as much to say as to the disposition of the 1916 National League pennant as had Stallings' club of the last two seasons.

"I'm not predicting a pennant for Boston," said Johnny. "It looks to me as it four or five clubs will be in the fight most of the way. Stallings will have better pitching, though, than he has ever had in Boston. He will have the most effective staff in the league when the veterans get a little hot weather. Boston's pitching staff is much better than it was in 1914. That year we had the Big Three—Rudolph, James and Tyler—but they had to do all the work. We have seven pitchers this year—Rudolph, Tyler, Reulbach, Ragan, Hughes, Barnes and Nehf—with not a bad one in the bunch. Besides, there is the possibility of James coming round. Pitching is going to go a long way this year on account of the unusual number of double headers."

Hints of a feud between Stallings and Evers sent out of the Middle West were base libels in the estimation of the other players and officials of the Braves. Indeed, Stallings and his high strung lieutenant never appeared more friendly.

ARM FEELS WHOLE LOT BETTER.

"We'll make a noise like a steam roller when the 'Crab' there gets back in the game," declared Stallings. He applied the appellation in Evers' presence. "Dolly" John, may be able to take a crack at the Giants before we leave town.

"The arm feels a whole lot better," Evers replied, "and I'd be delighted to get back in the lineup for the sake of my old friend McGraw.

"The trouble," Evers explained, "is a displaced nerve in the upper arm. At least that's what the Boston doctors say. I thought I don't believe they know as bit more than our weather man.

"One long-whiskered specialist that I consulted was curious to know what my arm was made of. He wanted to operate, mind you. Said he'd set back the nerve in place. Not for me. They'll have to operate on my head before I let them operate on my arm. The old souphone is not in such bad shape, anyhow," Evers concluded. "I've been out only about ten days and I'd have been back before this as well as ever if it hadn't been for the rotten weather. Not much chance of a sore arm improving these days."

HAIL WEINERT AS NEXT CHAMPION

Over in Jersey they insist that Charley Weinert, a Newark product, will be the next heavyweight champion of the world. They get awfully peeved in the Mosquito State because the Gotham promoters sniff at the idea of ranking Weinert in the same class as Frank Moran.

"Weinert can beat any heavyweight in the game today," wheeze Newarkites. "It is true that Jack Dillon beat him. But Dillon did it when Weinert was a novice. Dillon couldn't repeat even if Weinert fought with his eyes blindfolded."

Ban Johnson Out to See Public Not Cheated

Chicago, June 20.—Aroused over the Washington club's failure to live up to the announcement that Walter Johnson would be Ed Walsh's opponent in the game here last Tuesday, President Johnson of the American League announced that he is considering the inflicting of a fine on the club and the assessing of notice to other clubs that such announcements must be lived up to.

One of the largest weekly crowds of the season attended the game, drawn partly, it is presumed, by the news that in Walsh's attempt to come back, Johnson would oppose him.

Just before the game word was sent to reporters by Manager Griffith that because of the illness of Johnson's father-in-law, Congressman Roberts of Kansas, he would be unable to perform.

Yale Visits at Red Top Eli2dCrewinFastRow

Gales Ferry, Ct., June 20.—Confident that the crew men who hold membership in militia organizations will not have to report at once, both the Yale and Harvard eights are down to work once more.

This afternoon the Yale squad will pay its annual visit to the Harvard camp. This has become a feature, the crews alternating in visiting each other's quarters.

Coach Nickalls of the Yale crew said today that the varsity eight race on Friday would bring together two unbeatable strong crews. He asserted that Yale had made remarkable progress the past two weeks, but that Harvard had an exceptionally strong and smooth-rowing crew.

Just before the stone went was sent to reporters by Manager Griffith that because of the illness of Johnson's father-in-law, Congressman Roberts of Kansas, he would be unable to perform.

Yale practically prohibits time rowing during the week of the regatta. The said was a desperate attempt of the Yale second eight to get together in a newly rigged shell. There was only 19 minutes 46 seconds for the two miles that Yale had been made by the eight since its arrival here. Although Harvard will be favorite in this race, last night's showing by the Yale crew is evident that the Crimson will have no walk-over.

Butler Gets His Chance Meets Gallant at Arena

By RINGSIDE.

There is considerable interest attached to tonight's game of fisticuffs at the Arena between Gilbert Gallant of Chelsea, one of New England's veteran gloveists, a lightweight of very fair renown, though one whose present form has the talent guessing, as he has been to the races but once since last Fall, and Walter Butler of Revere, whom many shrewd critics have listed just about the best Queensberry broiler hereabouts.

Gallant and Butler are booked to traverse the usual twelve-round route. The weight notch, it is reported, is 135 at 2 o'clock. Whether Phil Powers or Mafitt Flaherty is the third party in the ring remains to be seen, as the Triple-A management continues to be lax in giving out such advance information to its members as interests them.

Exactly what comes to pass in the ring at the St. Botolph street casino remains to be seen. Gallant has the fans guessing. His at-home work last Summer was very uneven, his active toil terminating when Charley White, the noted Chicago lightweight, slammed him into slumberland in the fifth frame in their bout, September 21 last.

GALLANT TAKING IT EASY.

Gallant's one out during the 1915-16 Winter season took place in Denver, where, thinks to a hurrah finish, he tamed the pride of the Rockies, Stanley Yoakum, the Mexican lightweight.

The best thing about Gallant is that he is being managed by Abe Mitchell. Abe has never dealt in lemons. He's not only a shrewd handler, but a clever trainer, and it is his claim (all is "cheers riper" faster and stronger than at any time in his career.

This time a year ago Gallant was ranked with the high stepping of the sport; Butler was cavorting in the prelims. But heroes come and go in quadrennial panic as in all other games, and on this day and date there really may be little, if anything, to choose from between the two home products who will clash in the big number at the Arena tonight.

HAS MET MANY STARS.

Gallant has the prestige on his side of the argument. That generally betokens show in the fighting line. Jack Gilbo, who has met the bulk of the stars of the lightweight division, he has ever been rough and tough little warrior; a busy toiler and a hard one to beat, though never a very polished or high-grade performer.

Butler is a deceptive performer. He has worked his way up the line in legitimate fashion, and, since attaining dirty weights in the ring, has unfortunately always been paired with the same foe. In his home town, a la Freddie Mack, the Beachmont battler long long ago Dutter and Mack met in what passed for a main eleven because them, and, though they have been used often by the promoters as drawing cards for mains.

Hence, with Butler — with a strange opponent tonight, and a boy whom it has already been remarked, is particularly ring-wise suggested — will be interesting to see how much luck the Reverside sensation has left to stay back Butler wins from Gallant, he's made.

N. E. THRONE IS VACANT.

Now's the time for some New England boy to lift it up a high. With Matty Baldwin and Jimmy Walsh, not to mention Sullivan Twins, among others, entering our ranks, Johnny Dundee announcing his permanent retirement and a lot of youthful, unveiling Freddie Welsh, the section's supposed light-weight premier proving mere flashes in the pan, the first native son established himself as out-and-out star is assured coolest of fame, big book-ings and plenty of kale.

Butler has quite a chance to prove himself New England's new ring top. Likewise may Gallant, who has himself doped just about this section's best bet, refuse to bow before a broiler and succeed in sending the ambitious Walter into the stewards for all time.

BUTLER CROWD GLEEFUL.

The talent seems disposed to install Gallant the betting favorite, which generally proclaims the sure winner in an Arena windup number. However, be that as it may, the Butler contingent is mighty sweet on its starter and is out with the hanky forecast that Master Walter is going to completely show up the veteran Gallant and land the easiest sort of a winner.

Mish Murray's preliminary events stack as if they should please. Johnny Noonan, the Dorchester blond, who generally delivers, owing to his willingness to mix, has drawn Billy Myers as a foe in the semi-final. Not much is known of Myers, who is reported to hail from New York. The Armory A. A.'s ever faithful press agent states the newcomer is a positive riot. Maybe so and maybe no.

However, the Johnny Dundee-"Kid" Lee set-to is almost bound to prove a big bit. Those two precocious youths had a corking good little mill some four weeks ago and doped to be so even in their all-round work should repeat. Jimmy Gray and Bob Hart, two other mites, clash in the curtain-raiser.

ARMORY A. A. PROGRAM.

Gilbert Gallant, Chelsea, vs. Walter Butler, Revere, 12 rounds, 138 pounds at 3 o'clock.

Johnny Noonan, Dorchester, vs. "Billy" Myers, New York, 8 rounds.

Big Four Clash in Gala Event at Revere

With a double-header billed at the Revere Cycle Track tomorrow night, Manager Nat Butler will present to the fans the best card of the season.

The opening event will be the Brassard. With George Wiley, Victor Linart, Georges Seres and Clarence Carman booked to start, the ridding is sure to be of sensational sort, as all four performers are noted for their ability and endurance.

The Brassard is the richest stake at the Revere Oval. The winner secures a cash prize, a shield and a premium of $5 a day until beaten here.

The other event on the double-header will be a four-cornered twenty-mile motor pace race between "Pinky" Greville of Revere, Paul Suter of Switzerland; Georges Columbatte of Milan, and Fred Herbert of Fall River.

Between the two big events, Manager Butler will present a special set of amateur and professional races.

BOXING BRIEFS AND GOSSIP

Mr. B. MacLean's Tuesday morning announcement concerning the condition of Master Gilbert Gallant was to the effect that this Chelsea gizzo artist was never in better trim in his entire existence and what is in set going to do to Master Walter Butler at the Arena tonight is scarcely worth enumerating.

Mr. C. Deasbe, Master Butler's debonair handler, made the natural counter, giving it out that his charge was never feeling better in his life and that the unexpected must happen with a vehement vengeance for Master Gallant to avoid being treated to the biggest sensation of his career.

Some have it Gallant is slipping; that till he has landed in the battle slow looked to slop by Charley White, ye noted, ditto classy, Chicagoan, last August, and the layer-out's dope like our good. They aver Gallant won't be able to keep up with the stiff pace Butler is going to set, and, that while the Clelsea citizen will probably be in at street pavilion when the twelfth round has passed into history, he will have been hit so often it won't make the slightest bit of difference what referee on duty—he cannot do anything else but give Butler his award.

Be that as it may Gilbert has considerable on Butler when it comes to prestige and that's a quality that has ever been a huge asset in any and all number of sport. Gallant has been to the races time innumerable when the other fellow was of Derby caliber. Chances and third and fourth-raters, mostly, have been his portion, too. So, aboot the slightest thing possibility Butler has ever clashed with in the Freddie Mack of September.

In some five or seven or nine starts with that selfsame battler a draw has been the best Walter has ever been able to get.

Still, it looks as if Butler is of the improving sort and mayhaps tonight is when he is going to prove his right to operate in Winning streets before big fistic throngs. Butler's clean liver and rugged juvenile; a better basis for quality than talent, but it remains to be seen if he's as hokey as the Mac-Lean entrant and can get in success-fully under the battling is rough. If Gallant doesn't work early and often, Butler may be the one to carry the triumph.

With Ted (Kid) Lewis drawing down the Armory A. A., which has paid him a heap of money the past twelve months, and sailing away for Buenos Aires, consequently having himself cut-shed from next week's booking with Jack Britton, Mish Murray has all but matched Ben Kid Williams, per noted Hub more bantamweight, and "Mickey" Brown, the Malaclothe, to fill the date.

This will be Williams' first appearance in Boston, and, while the little fellows never do play much business, the fact that it is the Kid and Brown will get out quite a hefty house. That's because Al Marten, Brown's manager, is some demon P. A. There, the boat itself is mighty port looking.

Brown met Williams in New York at the old St. Nicholas Rink, in September, 1912. Brown, then a comparative novice, had the Kid going in three or seven or nine starts with that selfsame battler. A draw has been the best Walter has ever been able to get.

Woodman chaperoned Sam Langford, the Boston Tar Baby, to Buenos Aires. He's to go on with Harry Pierce before the South-ward Sporting Club, Brooklyn. Booked a number of fans for a return appearance, but something always happened to his host. This one is clinched and some real entertainment are to follow, in all likelihood.

Al Corbley, the well-known Gloucester manager, writes the AMERICAN stating that if Joe Woodman left anybody behind to do his business before he sailed for Buenos Aires with Sam Langford, nothing will suit him better than to match his brother Tommy Corbley with Barney Snyder. Al claims Tommy can stand as low as 140 pounds.

The Greenfield A. C. entertains Thursday night. The card: Pete Hartley of New York vs. Young John of Ingleside; Jack Dempsey of Holyoke vs. Johnny Ramsey of New York, 6 rounds, and Young Peterson of Green field vs. Young Bonner of Turners Falls.

Al Pyles, Freddie Reese's manager, is in communication from Brooklyn, denies that it was his charge who was knocked out by Terry Martin at Providence last week. Young Aubrey was the boy who was flattened by unexpected right hand smash. Says Mr. Pyles: "Aubrey came to New York some two weeks ago and offered to box with Joe Mandell that would be given to a preliminary fighter and we turned it down."

JOCKEY KNIGHT IS AGAIN IN FAVOR

New York June 20.—Joseph Knight, who in March of last year was ruled off the turf by the stewards at Oriental Park in Havana, has been reinstated. Knight's suspension followed his running of the Gold Cup Yellow Eyes race at Havana on March 4, 1915.

Since that Knight has been insistent on a reheating, with the ultimate result of the announcement of his reinstatement by Secretary Charles H. Flynn of the Cuba-American Jockey Club. The stewards, Major T. C. McDowell, Charles H. Laudale and P. A. Brady, were unanimous in approving Knight's application for reinstatement. The specific charge against Knight was that he offered to make a wager for a rider on a horse other than the one the lad rode in a race. Jockey Henry Wolfe of Jamaica, who was ruled off with Knight, also has been reinstated.

VAN DYKE TO PLAY RYDER

Clarence Van Dyke of Boston and Charley Ryder of New Bedford, two of New England's leading billiardists, are to meet in a match game for a $100 purse, at the back-shot variety, at the Imperial. Their match gets under way tomorrow night, with the final block Thursday night. Each night's play will be at 7:30.

CRICKET CREASE.

THE cricket schedule of the Massachusetts State Cricket League, is somewhat disturbed, owing to several postponements on account of the weather conditions. For the second week in succession Saturday games were called off.

* * *

BEVERLY WHITE'S three-time champions are, as usual, in the lead, tied with Needham. Both clubs have won all their games played to date. The clash between these teams on the 10th goes over to a later date.

* * *

STANDARDS, who were down to meet the champions last Saturday, gathered together the best team of their career, and were set on giving the champs a licking. The postponement, however, made it impossible.

* * *

ST. GEORGE'S have been in hard luck, losing all games played. Against the Whites they were minus the services of Captain Bottomley and H. Mitchell, against the Wanderers darkness set in during their innings at 4:30.

* * *

E. B. RECCE of the Needham club is the leading batsman in the league. He recently missed the century mark by one run and came back the following week with eighty-nine.

* * *

DICK FOX of the Beverly Whites has been bowling in great form, and hopes to win the league's bowling prize this year, and he is usual the backbone of his team. It is seldom he fails in bowling and can be relied on for double figures at the bat.

* * *

MANAGER GEORGE NICHOLLS of the St. Georges has been out of the game since May 27 as a result of stopping a hard-hit ball with his shins, requiring seven stitches to bring the flesh together.

Plans Made for Control of the Gaelic Sports

Plans were formulated at a meeting of Division 72, A. O. H., at No. 724 Washington street, to place the control of Gaelic sports under a governing body that will insist upon the strict observance of the rules governing football and hurling, and the teams that will compete in the carnival of sport at the field day of Division 72 at the Dorchester Grounds July 4 were notified that foul play and unnecessary roughness will not be tolerated.

The growing popularity of Gaelic games is responsible for the effort to place them on a higher plane, and a movement was launched to bring representatives of all the teams together for the purpose of emphasizing the necessity of strict observance of the rules.

The committees in charge of the games at the field day of Division 72 decided that because of the great rivalry between the teams matched some stringent action was necessary, especially in the football match between Tipperary and Cork, as well as in the matches between Limerick and Napper Tandy and Galway and Kerry.

In addition to those games the 12-mile invitation race has attracted Arthur Roth, winner of the B. A. A. Marathon run; Jimmy Henligan, New England cross-country champion; Clif Horne, New England 10-mile champion; LeRoy Davis of Lowell, winner of the American Liberty Marathon race, William Brown of Quincy, fifth in the B. A. A. race, and Fred Faller and Fred Nagle.

UNEARTH VARDEN'S SUPERIOR ON LINKS

Just when the golfing world was conceding that Harry Vardon is the greatest linkist of all time, the inevitable happened. Someone has extracted facts, figures and interviews to show that Harry is a piker in comparison with Tommy Morris, who golfed quite a bit in Scotland from 1848 to 1872.

It is now up to persons with argumentative dispositions to show that Morris himself is a dub in comparison with Chauncey Hipsdoke, who golfed back in 1824, and also for another faction to spoof Hipsdoke's greatness by recounting the greatness of Felix McSwatt, a golfer of 1738. And so on, ad infinitum.

New Haven, Ct.—June 20.—Fifteen thousand folks, many of them alumni here for Commencement Week, will flood the stands on Yale Field this afternoon to witness the first game of the baseball series between Yale and Harvard.

Because of its great record this Spring, Harvard enters the series as a favorite, even though Mahan, Harvard star infielder, is out of the contest. He was taken seriously ill with the grippe. His place was turned over to Whitney to open the game.

Yale's season hasn't been a successful one, largely because of the loss of seven players through ineligibility, but if the Elis can defeat Harvard in the series they will consider their campaign a rollicking success.

Newell Garfield will work for Yale, and, as he has been pitching high-grade ball all season, may treat the too confident Harvard team to a big surprise.

Harvard money is very plentiful here, but with few Yale takers. The followers of the Blue, while they will bail a Yale victory with great joy, do not expect any such happening and seem satisfied to be content with the assurance that the Elis have great prospects for 1917.

After this afternoon's game, both teams will move on to Cambridge, where the second contest is booked for tomorrow for the entertainment of Harvard's Commencement Week. Play starts this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

If the series is then a tie the teams will meet in Boston Saturday. Yale had originally been booked here for the third game, but both the New York and Yale Field grounds are engaged for that date. Springfield and Worcester were suggested for the play-off of a tie, but neither city has large enough stands to accommodate the crowd expected.

DREYFUSS OFFERS $50,000 FOR STAR

Pittsburgh, June 20.—Fifty thousand dollars is the price Barney Dreyfuss is willing to pay for a real ball player—a man of recognized ability and one whose hitting can and will supply the long-felt want on the Pittsburgh baseball club.

This offer is made in dead earnestness. The Pirate owner realizes that in order for him to realise on his investment he must have a winning team.

BUES, EX-BRAVE, IS SIGNED BY COLUMBUS

Kansas City, June 20.—Art Bues, outfielder for the Kansas City American Association ball club, who brought the international relations from Manager Tebeau, has been signed by the Columbus team of the American Association. Bues is an ex-Brave.

Dreams That Do Not Come True

The Country Boy's Idea of Life in the City and the Reality as the Broker Sees It.

The Country Youth—dreaming of city life as he thinks it is:

"City life is THE life. I hope when I die I'll go to State Street and be a broker. That would be about my idea of a Heaven.

"No work. All you have to do is to lounge around a wonderful office and watch the funy little machine they call a ticker and listen to the good stories the fellows are telling, and every now and then buy a few hundred shares of some stock when it's low, add sell it out a few days later for a big bunch of money.

"No shabby clothes. Just quantities of silk shirts and ties and socks and every kind of shoes, and tailors bowing and scraping before you as you saunter into their shop and order a dozen different suits at a time.

"No getting up early in the morning. Instead, about 10 o'clock you wake up, if you feel like it, and leisurely read your paper in bed, and then after you have had your bath and your breakfast, and a spin around the park in your motor, you drop into business for a while.

"No worry about whether it rains too much or doesn't rain enough, or gets too hot or too cold for the crops. That doesn't worry you, because if it rains you take a taxi, and if it's hot you run down to the seashore, or go up to an electric fanned roof garden.

"Life is just one long picnic for the city man. He doesn't have to go to bed with the chickens because there's nothing else to do except to yawn in the face of the clock. After his day's work is done—but I'd call that sort of work fun—all he's got to do is to rush home and dash into his dress clothes and go out to some swell restaurant and have a gorgeous dinner with champagne, and while he eats he is amused by a gay cabaret show, and then go to the theatre, and afterward to a supper, and fox trot with beautiful women until 3 o'clock a. m.

"Or, if it's Summer time, he can get some jolly friends and motor out to a country club for dinner and dancing, or go down to one of the beaches, and he never has to count the cost of anything because money is coming to him on wings—the easy money that you don't have to work for and you don't mind spending.

"Life certainly is a dream for the city man!"

The Broker—speaking of city life as stern reality has shown it to be:

"No use talking, but this life is the pace that kills. Yesterday was a million-share day, and quotations changed so quickly that it kept every nerve strained to the breaking point. I sent the office boy out for a bottle of milk and a box of crackers for lunch and repeated the order for dinner. It was two in the morning before we got the day's work cleaned up, and I was too tired to go to my little flat, so I snatched three or four hours' sleep on the office couch.

"But I'm not complaining. Anybody who has known the anxiety about money that I have in these last few lean years is glad to work like a dog. What with the things that the wife and the children must have, there's little left for father.

"That's the trouble with city life. The high cost of living takes all you make just for bare existence.

"What's that about afternoon tea dances? I've heard of them, of course, but I've never been to one. What would my competitors do to me while I was off heathing at a the dansant? Restaurant dinners? About once a year. You ought to come to my little place and eat some of my wife's corned beef and cabbage. I wouldn't exchange one of her meals for the best the restaurants can offer.

"The theatres? Opera? Oh, of course, now and then. Cost too much money. The movies for ours, where we can take the children, and go without dressing up, and be in bed by 11. That's about my program. Breakfast at 8, off to the office, on the jump all day, home, a chat with the wife, a romp with the kids and bed. For a lark we take the children to the park, and are glad enough to break even when the bills are paid at the end of the month.

"Thanks, old man. But I never drink. Got to keep my head clear in my business, where my own money and other people's depends on my old thinker never missing fire.

"The gay city man? Oh, he's somebody that's blown in from the country on an outing. He doesn't belong to the rank and file of city workers as I do.

"He sees the glitter and the glamour and the gay throngs, and in his mind's eye he pictures the metropolis as a place of perpetual amusement.

"He's got money to spend—money he's been saving up—and he doesn't care how it goes. No wonder city life looks good to him.

"He goes home thinking what a glorious thing it would be to live in town all the time. He never stops to think about the other end of it.

"And, of course, he tells all his friends what a wonderful place the city is and they go and do likewise.

"Do you wonder the country boy dreams of Boston as the Mecca of easily made money?

"But it's different when he settles down in the city—when he wakes up."

A Valuable Dog

Gentleman (to dog dealer): "I gave you a high price for this dog last week because you warranted it to be a good house dog. My house was broken into last night, and the dog never even barked."

Dog dealer: "No, sir; I quite believes you. He was too busy lookin' at the burglars to want to be able to identify 'em, to even think of barkin'. If you was out with this 'ere dog and was to meet them burglars, he'd know 'em in a minute. He ain't no common barkin' dog; he's a regular 'tective, an' worth his weight in gold, he is."

"You're a Dangerous Girl"

NOT an Old Song But a New One

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1910, by International News Service.

Which Is the More Dangerous, Mischievous and Changeable—the Soft, Motherly Type or Mystery?

Drawn by NELL BRINKLEY After Hearing the Popular Song "YOU'RE A DANGEROUS GIRL," Now Being Sung from Coast to Coast.

I LOVE you, I love you, you're just the kind of girl for me,
But there is something 'bout you makes me doubt you.
Why, oh! why must it be? You dare me, you scare me, and still I like you more each day,
But you're the kind that will charm, and then do harm. You've got a dangerous way.

CHORUS

YOU'RE beautiful, yes, beautiful,
You're wonderful, I know—
But you're the kind of girlie that makes 'em fall.
And when you get 'em where you want 'em, you fool 'em all.
I'm on to you, but I'm fond of you,
'Cause you're the sweetest girl in the world.
Your lips have said "Now don't be a stranger
But they're both red, I know that means danger
You're wonderful, just marvellous,
But you're a dog-goned dangerous girl.

AL JOLSON sang this at the New York Winter Garden—sang it until the city began to hum it under its breath. It's all over the country now—and big, sparkly vaudevillians, and prancing musical-comedians are singing it until all over people, off the stage and on, are swaying under its spell and singing aloud, "You're a DANGEROUS girl!"

The chorus doesn't tell you just what IS a dangerous girl. It sings it at all sweethearts. It is the pack-ery of the lovers. For each man who sings it it means just one fascinating little person whose eyes are his drowning sea. YOU could circle around her for life—and take no hurt—but for him she is eternal bondage and eternal pain and joy. For one man mischief and whimsey change, spells DANGER. Eyes that laugh and deny are his magnet and his trap.

For another the Madonna girl with the soft eyes and the mother-mouth, who speaks of home and little children, is his idol and his chains. For another still mystery and veiled eyes and subtle lips mean a heartless breast from the time he first sees her, and a bended knee.

What is a dangerous girl? NELL BRINKLEY.

Girl Workers Who Win

The Cashier Who Found an Ally Where She Did Not Expect One

By JANE M'LEAN.

Some people call it great fun to sit all day behind the cage of the cashier's desk and take in money. Some people would never dream of calling it an effort to be pleasant, and would scoff at the idea of it being just as hard work as anything else.

Often enough you have heard girls remark, "Oh, it's easy enough for her; all she has to do is to sit all day on a chair and hand out change."

Yes, but the truth of the thing is it isn't so easy. Helen could tell you all about it if you wanted to know. She is a cashier. She sits all day behind the wire of the cashier's desk, and smiles and hands out change, and she knows now hard it is and how difficult it is to smile when one feels like weeping.

Helen's day runs something like this: In the morning she arrives in time to make changes for the early customers. She eats her own breakfast hurriedly, and a good breakfast it is, too, while the manicurey takes her place, and then she slips in behind the brass cage and begins her day.

She likes the work well enough. It would not be hard if people would regard it as a business instead of a recreation. But from the early morning she often has to deal with people who see only the blond braids wound about her trim little head, the red cheeks and the soft eyes.

Men think that with a face like hers she naturally wants admiration and attention, and while she cabable little hands count out quarters and dimes they feast their eyes on her profile and ask her how late she will be free, and if she doesn't want to go to the movies some night soon.

Helen invariably straightens up and wipes out some spirited reply, which generally takes effect. Mr. Trask, the manager, usually keeps his eyes on the desk pretty sharply, and the men who stop for more than a pleasant word are generally noticed very quickly. But when these incidents are steadily repeated again and again through the day, Helen sighs wearily and wonders if there is not something else that she could get to do.

One morning a rather pale-looking young fellow stopped by the booth and after he had received his change, looked leeringly at Helen and said:

"How'd you like to see a show tonight? Here's a couple of seats; meet me at the box office at 8 o'clock."

Helen had not slept well, and her head ached a little. It took only those few words to make her blind with rage, and she seized the tickets quickly and tore them into pieces.

The man stared and Mr. Trask hurried over to the desk. He was a hard man, and Helen knew that she would probably lose her position; things couldn't possibly be any worse than they were, anyway, so she raised her head high and looked bitterly at the youth who was still standing at the desk.

"Mr. Trask, this man was annoying me," she said a little tremulously. "I'm sorry to make a fuss, but I couldn't help it."

Mr. Trask turned upon the man angrily and, to Helen's surprise, ordered him out of the place. Everyone was staring, and Helen covered her face with her hands. But what was that Mr. Trask was saying?

"And I want it understood that Miss Graham is one of my chief helpers, and not a decoration in this place. The next time I find anyone annoying her, I shall make an example of him. That's all right, Miss Graham," turning to the girl kindly. "I want you to feel that you can call on me in a case like this. You're a good worker, and I don't want to lose you for any foolishness of this kind, not by a long shot."

And Helen threw him a little smile of gratitude as she stealthily wiped her eyes and settled back in her seat.

Anecdotes of the Famous

Here in America there is much suffering from catarrh and head noises. American people would do well to consider the method employed by the English to combat this insidious disease. Everyone knows how damp the English climate is and how dangerous affects those suffering from catarrh. In England they treat catarrhal deafness and head noises as a constitutional disease and use an internal remedy for it that is really very effective.

Sufferers who could scarcely hear a watch tick tell how they had their hearing restored by the English treatment to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven and eight inches away from either ear.

Therefore, if you know anyone who is troubled with catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be easily prepared at home for about 75c and is made as follows:

From your druggist obtain 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c worth. Take this home, and add to it ½ pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take a tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to relieve by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the result it gives are usually remarkably quick and positive.

Every person who has catarrh in any form should give this recipe a trial and free themselves from this destructive disease.—Advertisement.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DON'T BE STUBBORN

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Two weeks ago I had an argument with my fiance. I admit I was in the wrong. I have unconsciously "given in" to his ways, but this time thought it best not to do so. I have not seen or heard from him since, and I presume he thinks I should call him up. "DISAPPOINTED."

YOUR attitude is both petty and stubborn and not in any way compatible with real love. What does it matter who makes the advances? The point is that you are at present estranged from the one you love, and that a few words would clear up the situation. Are you not ashamed to hesitate to say them?

THIS LIES IN THE HANDS OF THE YOUNG COUPLE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX.

My sister has been engaged about four months to a man who is earning enough to support a wife. Do you think it proper for us to give hints when he calls about getting married? Also kindly advise me if it is proper for her to have him stay at her house all night. MRS. S.

BY no means "throw hints" to your sister's fiance when he calls. The date of the wedding is a matter the young couple should settle between themselves. It is not a matter for hinting or for outside interference. The bride is supposed to name the day. At the end of a four months' engagement she ought to have some idea as to when she is going to marry in order to complete her trousseau, etc. Let your sister discuss the matter honestly and openly with her fiance. If there is any reason, financial or otherwise, why they cannot marry at present don't nag at them. Of course, it is proper for him to stay at the house of his fiance on occasions. I take it she lives with other members of her family or with someone who is capable of chaperoning her.

WAIT AND TEST YOUR "LOVE"

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

For three weeks I have been in the habit of attending a dancing class, at which I met a girl with whom I fell deeply in love at first sight. Could she be secretly married on such a short acquaintance?

RAY K.

DO not marry a girl of whom your chief knowledge is that she is an attractive dancing partner. That is no basis for a life partnership.

"I DO NOT BELIEVE IN "LOVE"

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Would you advise me to marry a young man who is intelligent and wealthy, but short and homely? Love is not being considered in this question, for I do not believe in love.

If you will answer this question for me I will greatly appreciate it. ROSE LILLIE.

SO you do not "believe in love"?

Well, my dear girl, the matter cannot be settled offhand like that. Love and emotion always have been and always will be factors in life. The fact that a man is short and not good looking need not make a girl feel that he is undesirable as a husband, provided she loves him. But I advise strongly against her going into this thing so coldbloodedly.

HELP HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man five and have been going about with a man of thirty. I know I shall never meet any I like so well. His only fault is a love for liquor. Can you tell me if there is any hope for a man like that? MILDRED O.

ANY ONE who has strength of character can conquer a bad habit. Particularly is this true if, in addition to his own strength, the victim of a habit has the loyal help of someone who loves him. Do not marry a man who is a drunkard, but if for the sake of your love he will try to conquer the habit give him all the help in your power and the promise that you will marry him when a year's time has proven that he is willing and able to reform.

Youthful, Beautiful Skin Easy to Have

You may be as healthy as a bird in the air, and still have a poor complexion. Changing seasons and temperatures, winds, dust and dirt, are apt to injure and skin, often by lowering general health be good. When these external influences upon the complexion, the natural thing is to remove them at once by external means. Ordinary mercolized wax will do this. It will actually absorb the weather-soiled film-skin, a little each day. In a week or two you will have a beautiful complexion, a new skin. The exquisitely beautiful and pearly complexion thus acquired, comes so easily without harm or discomfort, there's no reason why any woman should not adopt this simple treatment. Get an ounce of mercolized wax at any drug store, apply nightly like cold cream, washing it off mornings. This will not fail in any case.

To quickly remove wrinkles, signs of care and age, bathe the face occasionally in a solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel. The results will surprise you.—Advertisement.

PHONE STORY IS DAMAGING TO WILL ORPET

By DOROTHY DIX.

Waukegan, Ill., June 20.—Two Lake Forest telephone girls who "listened in" on a conversation not meant for their ears have spun the first thin thread of the web of circumstantial evidence in which William Orpet may possibly yet be ensnared.

The telephone girls were Mrs. Stanley Kennedy and Miss Mary Dunn, who frankly admitted that it was their sociable habit to eavesdrop on any racy talk that might go on over their wires. Both of them knew Marian Lambert very well. Also they knew William Orpet, and without doubt were keenly interested in all of the gossip that was floating around concerning the romance of the two youthful lovers.

So when William Orpet called up the Lambert number at 9 o'clock on February 8, from the pay station at the electric line depot, Mrs. Kennedy pricked up her ears and took note of what he said. Also, being of a kind disposition, she shared the pleasure with Miss Dunn, whom she advised to cut in and listen, too.

They testified that they overheard this conversation:

"Hello, is that you Marian? This is Will Orpet."

"Hello, is that you, Will?"

"Marian, can't you slip out and meet me?"

"No, I can't risk it."

"Oh, come out and risk it. I've got to go back to Madison on the five o'clock train in the morning."

"No, I can't risk it, I guess mother got wise the last time I was sick."

"Oh, come out and I will give you something to fix it up."

"SOMETHING FOR YOU."

Unfortunately at this juncture Mrs. Kennedy had to answer a call and quit listening, but Miss Dunn got another fragment of the conversation and declared that Orpet still urged Marian to come out and meet him, and that he said: "I have something for you."

What this "something" was becomes the crux of the case. Was it a deadly poison to end the young girl's life? Or was it just some medicine, such as it is claimed he had given her before, to relieve the condition that she had told him that she was in?

It has been argued that the way Orpet induced Marian to take the poison was by representing it to be medicine that would "make everything all right," as he put it in one of his letters, but that contention seems fallacious in the face of the fact that, while the girl was deceiving him in regard to the true state of affairs, she knew herself that there was no danger. It therefore seems unreasonable that she would have taken a nauseous dose out there in the forest, with not even a drop of water to wash it down. The probability is that under the circumstances that she would have taken the bottle away with her, pretending that she would take the medicine later.

However, that is mere theory, as is so much else in this case where tangible facts that can be proven seem so few and far between.

But undoubtedly the testimony of the listening telephone girls that Orpet said he had brought something "to fix it all up" was about the most damaging evidence that has yet been brought out against him in the trial.

EXAMINE "EIGHTEEN GIRLS."

The balance of the day was nil so far as results went. Look at it as you would, you could not see that any single thing was accomplished that went an inch toward solving the mystery of how Marian Lambert came by her death.

Very nearly all the morning session was taken up by the examination of various members of the "bunch of eighteen," the pretty little school girls who were friends of Marian's, and who had spent her birthday with her on the Sunday previous to her death. These young girls, all of them sweet eighteen, fluttered into court in their gay Summer finery like a flock of bright-winged butterflies. And their testimony was worth just as much.

With one voice, and in one phrase that each repeated, they told how happy Marian had been, and she and Anna Paulson had had their eyes full of tears when they parted because Anna couldn't spend the night with Marian on her birthday as she had done on every birthday since they were three years old.

Somehow in the whole case there has been nothing so inconspicuous, nothing that has thrown such a pathetic light on Marian Lambert as just this often repeated statement—that she wept because a girl friend that she saw every day wasn't going to stay all night with her. Think of her crying over a paltry thing like that, and yet being able to carry in her heart a dark and terrible secret, and a gnawing fear she masked so successfully with giggles that even her mother never suspected it. Poor little Marian Lambert with the mind of a child and the passions of a woman. God pity all such!

TELL HER SECRETS.

On Saturday one of the "bunch of eighteen" had testified that she spent the night of Marian's birthday dinner with her and had slept with her and that they talked from 11 o'clock when they went to bed, until half past two, as girls will. And as girls also will, they told each other all their secrets, and that Marian had told her that she was expecting Will down and that she was going to have it out with him about Celestia Youker and that if it was true he was engaged to Celestia she didn't know what she would do.

And besides this, Marian had told her that Will had been down secretly to see her once since Christmas and that she had met him at the Sacred Heart station and it was very risky, because her mother could have seen her, as she had on a red coat, if she looked out of the window.

"How could Will come home and his people not know it?" asked the little girl, and Marian had replied that he had something on the chauffeur so that the chauffeur dared not tell, and so let him sleep in the garage.

And yesterday another little girl testified that just before Marian died that she had said, "I have been in the chemical laboratory with Irving and got him going again, and I'm the happiest girl alive."

And with Marian thus visioned to the jury as a happy, careless, light-hearted girl, the pretty schoolgirl fluttered off the stand, and Mr. Duffy turned his hand to the impossible task of extracting information out of unwilling witnesses.

GREECE DEFIANT AND KEEPING UP ARMY

Salonika, June 20.—The situation at Athens is very unsatisfactory from the point of view of the allies. No solution is in sight. Demobilization of the Greek forces is not a fact and the Skoulouds government is maintaining a defiant attitude.

Paris, June 20.—There is direct anxiety for saying that very stern and strong measures are to be taken almost immediately by the allies in Greece. Should the Greek government not comply with the allies' demands, the measures will be drastic. The measures, after complete agreement between French and British governments, were planned recently when Premier Briand was in London.

STOCKS AND INVESTMENTS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, the price trend being upward all the morning. In the second hour a number of issues showed a gain of two points or more. Advances of 12 o'clock included Anaconda, 1; Chino ¾, Inspiration 1, Utah Copper ¾, American Zinc 1, Butte & Superior ¾, U. S. Steel ¾, American Smelting 1¾, U. S. Smelting ¾, Kendrick 1¾, Westinghouse, 1¾, United Fruit 1, Best Sugar 1¾, American Loco 1¾, Baldwin 1¼, Crucible 2, Distillers ¾, Mexican Petroleum 2¼, Maxwell 2, Studebaker 1⅝, Chandler 1¾, Willys-Overland 4½, Industrial Alcohol, Marine preferred 1¾, Atlantic Pacific 1¾, Chesapeake & Ohio 1¾, Southern Pacific ¾, St. Paul 1, North Western ¾, Reading ¾, Kendrick 1¾, Valley ¾, New Haven ½, N. Y. Central 1¾, Baltimore & Ohio ¾, Norfolk & Western 2¼ and Union Pacific 1¾.

The majority of stocks on the Boston list had improved, going including Amoskeag 1, Allouez 1, North Butte ¼, Osceola 1, Butte & Superior 1½, United Fruit 1¾, New Haven ½ and Gulf common ¾.

Among declines were Boston & Maine 2, American Zinc ¼, Calumet & Arizona ¼, Copper Range ½, Mohawk ½, Tamarack 1, U. S. Smelting ½ and United Shoe ½.

At the opening in New York there was good demand for stocks, and while some were fractionally below yesterday's closing figures, others made gains. The market had a firm tone and the trend was upward. While a few minutes the rule was strong. Early price changes were small as a rule, but Mexican Petroleum and United Fruit advanced a point or more. It is said that orders for interest brought freely on Monday's recession. It appeared to be general trading opinion that the reaction due to the assembling of troops in preparation for intervention and perhaps trading for war in Mexico was over. A little liquidation through commission houses at the start. Most of the trading was in the railroad, copper and munition stocks. Motor car issues were quiet. By the end of the first hour American Smelting, Baldwin, Crucible and Norfolk & Western were among the leaders. Reports from this country with Mexico were about the only thing affecting war in the Republic. National politics and the controversy between railroads and their employes were seldom mentioned.

In Boston coppers ruled lower. Trading was of the routine for the local market, with Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies common and Utah Consolidated the most active issues. The former developed early strength, was lifted 1 point and then declined ¼ and Straits 10s. Spot lead was unchanged at 6.50 and 6.60. Spelter quotations were unchanged.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

The Boston Financial News says a leading banking house in New York has issued a circular in which it is stated that the disbursements for interest and dividends on the first of July will reach the enormous figure of $225,000,000. Nearly the entire amount will stay in this country, as sales by foreign holders of our securities to war nations will be offset by the greatly reduced the amounts held so that but a comparatively small amount will be transferred.

C. W. Geddes & Co., investment brokers at 50 State street, say that N. Y. C. specialize in Western mining stocks and are considered very well-informed people. They have for many years connected with some of the largest mining companies in the world, being at present the general superintendent of the Goldfield Consolidated Mining Company at Goldfield, Nev.

During the fiscal year ended May 31 U. H. McGowan, Co.'s gross sales are understood to have amounted to $24,-344,000 and net profits to more than $10,000,000.

It is believed that June earnings of United Fruit will be distinctly better than 4 per cent. on its stock.

Silver production in the United States last year was about 6,000,000 ounces less than in 1914.

HOLD CLASS DAY EXERCISES AT HARVARD

Harvard's Class Day started in full swing this forenoon when the seniors and their friends thronged into Sanders Theatre for the customary morning exercises.

William J. Bingham, captain of the track team, and R. Norris Williams, 2d, captain of the tennis team, as first and third marshals, headed the seniors in their journey from the yard to the theatre. After Professor George H. Palmer offered prayer, Donald J. Wallace of Los Angeles, centre on the varsity football team, read the class oration, which dealt with the obligations of citizens. Wallace, whose father was formerly Lieutenant-governor of California, declared:

"One of the most deplorable facts in American politics is that many citizens seek public office, not for the honor of such a position, but for the advantages which they can reap thereby. A man who accepts office for purely selfish reasons—who retires from office with more financially than he had entered, that man is not a good citizen. He is a traitor, perhaps even a criminal."

"DANGERS TO REPUBLIC."

He urged that men of education throw off their dislike of entering the arena of politics and instead of man's work in elevating American politics. Wallace said further:

"There are dangers which threaten the existence of this republic. The first of these arises from the lack of interest upon popular action. At times of crisis there is a tendency to let the other man look after affairs. This has been called the crucible—the melting pot for all nations. Assimilating the foreign element that come yearly to our shores is a problem full of danger.

"We, as a nation, are growing marvelously rich. This arises the problem of the distribution of wealth—and in America today the rising tide of discontent due to our failure to solve this problem, seems to have reached the high-water mark and the ebb will stand but little more pressure. The republic of Rome was ruled by extravagance and luxury—let not the historians in after years make the same statement about America."

Robert Cutler of Brookline delivered the class poem, which chided the seniors with neglecting their opportunities in college.

Here are a few of the part of fools and youth.
We choose to loiter at the temple gate
And misspend our talents in the lane
Which would identify our chosen case
With Thrifte Shiftless, the idle and the prodigal.

And to our lifelong preparation harmed
Awhile to daily with amenities.
And for guidelessness we were charmed!
As we have armed ourselves for life, so are we armed.

Yet Harvard had her faults as we our own.
Harvard's aloofness from the world
Harvard abides not question; she has grown,
And she is proud of her splendid isolation.
I think the glory of Thermopylæ
Is that three hundred died to a man.
And million eyes, however clear they see,
Never speak to them their last reveille
Still are more blind than eyeless Milton, still more free.

Farewell, great foster mother of our youth!
Out to the bleeding world we march today,
Her future hopes and ideals in us to see.
Where affluence lulls honor to decay,
There Harvard men forget their place must pay.
Remember, mother, may these children see
With unscaled sight to tread the roiler way,
With mind full of their great heredity
By their post, mortal measure shall men measure me.

CLASS ODE READ.

The class ode, written by Kenneth B. Murdock of Chestnut Hill, was then read by the class under the leadership of Chorister Richard M. Spaulding of St. Joseph, Mo. The ode, a portion of which follows, is:

Fair Harvard, thy sons in their hearts hold thine undying
Thy treasures so freely bestowed.
And the counsel that ever has shed bright fire
Ah! thine like beacons aboud on Life's road;
We shall forever their light, and proudly of our share
Of love of faith and the Hope born of thee.
We shall carry thy message, and serve in thy name
With our hearts by thy teachings set free.

After these exercises spreads were held by the seniors in Beck Hall, where Boston and New York societies flocked. Hollis and Stoughton Halls and Wadsworth House had banquets, while the fraternities and clubs entertained and dined their friends.

At 5 o'clock the yard was closed to all but folks holding special tickets and two bands entertained the crowds from 3 o'clock until 11 o'clock.

STADIUM EXERCISES.

The exercises in the Stadium start at 4.30 o'clock, when E. Howell Foreman of Atlanta will deliver the ivy oration. Preceding this ceremony, the alumni classes and undergraduates will march from the yard to the stadium, followed finally by the seniors, who, after cheering the various colleges and buildings, in the yard, will form their mystic rites under the elm tree near Holden Chapel. Speaking of Soldiers Field, where Percy Haradon William J. Bingham will turn over the stadium to Harvard, then Edward R. Flower, president of 1913, receiving them.

After the ivy orator has concluded his say, the customary confetti battle will take place and the crowds will break ranks and again be entertained by their feasting senior friends.

Dancing and band concerts will be the chief features of the evening's entertainment, one with between-dance hour's entertainment by the cities Club at 9.30 o'clock on the broad steps of Widener Library.

At midnight all the seniors who have worked to well be given an opportunity to disport unadorned for a few minutes under the two spray fountains in the yard.

CITIZENS, SHALL WE SUBMIT ANY LONGER TO THESE SHAMEFUL CONDITIONS OR SHALL WE FIGHT?

AND now about Mexico. The National Guard has been ordered to mobilize and it begins to look as if watchful waiting had come to its miserable end.

It begins to look as if Washington had found a backbone.

For that let us be thankful.

When we say "Washington" we mean the whole administration—the President and his Cabinet and the Congress of the United States.

For they have all had a hand in writing the wretched story of the past three years. And within these ten days the leaders of both parties, at Chicago and at St. Louis, have done their little best to subject the nation to more months and more years of the same shame and insult which have made true Americans' blood boil in their veins for a weary time of humiliation and helpless wrath.

Both national conventions wrote into their platforms futilities about Mexico, of which it can only be said that either one you read last seems to be more cowardly than the other.

We think nothing could more emphatically show the innate disposition and instinct of the professional politician than these two platform declarations which were intended to say something that would mean nothing, and which so perfectly fulfil the intention.

But, good people, when an ostrich jams his brainless head into the sand under the impression that his elevated rear is thereby made invisible to his pursuers, he doesn't avoid his pursuers. He only invites them to come faster. And this Mexican trouble is only invited, and has been constantly invited, by our national imitation of the fool ostrich.

One of the excuses made for the existence of this Mexican situation is that Mr. Wilson inherited this situation from Mr. Taft.

We would like to know what on earth Mr. Taft's policy has to do with Mr. Wilson's policy. Mr. Wilson asked the people to elect him four years ago on the express ground that MR. TAFT'S POLICIES HAD NOT BEEN SATISFACTORY, and that he would give the country something different. And, besides, it is the first time we ever heard that a man ought not to be expected to tie up a mad dog because he had inherited the brute from somebody who let the dog run loose.

Suppose we restate this whole Mexican affair, so that we can all have a clear understanding of how matters now stand before we talk over among ourselves what ought to be done.

During the past one hundred years Mexico has had a settled, stable government but once—the rule of Porfirio Diaz from the time of his second advent to power, in 1884, until his expulsion by Madero.

The rule of Diaz was a despotism under the forms of constitutional republicanism; and under his able and far-sighted absolutism Mexico flourished and took a place among recognized nations. The day he fell, revolt, brigandage and anarchy began again to come in fashion, thus proving that the professional politicians and professional soldiers of Mexico are alike incapable of real patriotism and that the Mexican people are still incapable of maintaining free government.

To all intents and purposes, Mexico in its politics, its internal feuds and its external unwillingness and inability to recognize its duties as a member of the family of nations, was at the beginning of Mr. Wilson's term of office precisely the Mexico of 1847, and the Mexico of 1859.

The land was at the mercy of banditti, calling themselves revolutionists, and the chiefs of these banditti cared absolutely nothing for the public or private rights of Mexican citizens, or for the rights of neighboring nations. In truth and in deed, MEXICO WAS AN INTERNATIONAL OUTLAW.

There were two men, either of whom, with the support of our government, might have restored order and emulated the rule of Diaz. One of these was Victoriano Huerta, the other Francisco Villa.

Huerta, in actual possession of the capital and the governmental machinery, should have been recognized as President, permitted to obtain supplies with which to put down the banditti, and helped to establish an orderly government with which the United States could deal.

He was thwarted, hindered, and finally driven from Mexico on the ridiculous ground that he was a party to the assassination of Madero—as if it would be possible to find a Mexican leader who HAD NOT BEEN A PARTY TO ASSASSINATION.

After Huerta, Villa showed enough strength and influence to have controlled Mexico, and he could have been and should have been aided in establishing a government. More especially, since AT THAT TIME Villa was the only Mexican leader with sense enough to appreciate the power of the United States and to show a uniform respect for Americans' rights and lives.

But Mr. Wilson chose the strange alternative of actively aiding Carranza to defeat Villa in the field—Carranza's troops being actually transported across AMERICAN TERRITORY, OVER AMERICAN RAILWAY LINES, in order to strike Villa a totally unlooked-for and fatal blow.

This was the beginning of Villa's fierce hatred for Americans and the DIRECT CAUSE OF THE MASSACRES he afterwards inflicted upon Americans.

In the meantime, as variations of the long program of procrastination, hesitancy, shuffling and backing and filling, two armed expeditions have been made into Mexico.

About the Vera Cruz expedition, the less said the better. But that extraordinary diplomatic and military blunder is certainly one of the prime causes of Mexico's subsequent truculence and contempt. For every Mexican religiously believes that the accursed Yankees fled from Vera Cruz because they were afraid to await the attack of Mexico's heroic and invincible soldiers.

The second expedition has been in Mexico three months and its accomplishments have been to array hardly enough American soldiers on Mexican soil to defend themselves against attack and to put them in the worst strategic positions that Chihuahua affords—our commanders, of course, having done the best they could under the orders of civilians at Washington, as ignorant, apparently, of warfare as of Mexico.

We pointed out the folly and the danger of these half-way military measures AT THE TIME THEY WERE ORDERED.

We told you people THEN that any advance into Mexico except a bold, rapid advance in strong force, would simply excite hostility, and that while Carranza and Obregon were using the masks of negotiation and friendship they would SECRETLY PREPARE THEIR TROOPS FOR A SUDDEN BLOW and a dangerous blow.

We might as well have talked to the man in the moon as to have talked sense about Mexico to Washington.

Now, the exact result we pointed out as bound to come HAS COME.

Carranza has played his cards as anybody who knew Mexican character could have foreseen he would play them.

The Mexican chief whom Mr. Wilson and Mr. Lansing picked out to recognize and to support has suddenly assumed a haughty and hostile tone. His forces are posted for an attack upon our troops, and they will attack our troops—and our troops will have to BLOODILY FIGHT THEIR WAY TO THE VERY STRATEGIC RAILWAY POINTS which they should have been permitted to seize as soon as they crossed the border in force last March.

How many American lives and how much American treasure it will take to pay for the stupid blundering and watchful waiting of these three months just passed, nobody can now say. But the toll will be heavy.

And, citizens, THE TOLL WILL BE HEAVIER every day that our troops are held in leash.

This cowardly, evasive, cheap political platform declaration which assures Carranza that armed intervention is "revolting to the American people" simply means the deaths of hundreds of Americans.

For this declaration IS PRECISELY WHAT CARRANZA NEEDS to convince his peons that it is safe to attack our troops, because our people will not fight.

HE'LL FIGHT IF THEY LET HIM

Citizens, there are only two things which can be done with this Mexican problem now.

We can watchfully wait another four years and let Mexico be devastated by thieves and assassins until the ruin of that unhappy country is beyond repair; or—

We can INTERVENE WITH THE FULL STRENGTH OF OUR ARMY AND NAVY and kill or drive out of the country the whole outfit of thieves and assassins AND ESTABLISH A GOVERNMENT OF LAW AND ORDER under the armed protection and the guidance of the United States for the good and welfare of the Mexican people, and our own people.

There is no middle policy.

It is INTERVENTION or continued ANARCHY, ROBBERY AND MURDER.

And if we intervene, we must intervene with dignity AND WITH IRRESISTIBLE POWER AND DETERMINATION.

The American Eagle ought not to be compelled any longer to play the role of a buzzing and irritating mosquito.

Every move Mr. Wilson has made in Mexico in the past three and a half years has simply INCREASED THE HATRED of Americans in the hearts of Mexicans, and simply FOSTERED THE BELIEF OF MEXICANS THAT WE ARE A RACE OF TIMID COWARDS WHOM THEY CAN WHIP.

Ask anybody who knows Mexico at first hand if that statement is not literally true.

Now, matters have reached the point at which THE ONLY POSSIBLE WAY TO MAKE THESE MEXICANS RESPECT THE POWER OF THE UNITED STATES and to believe that our government will protect its citizens' rights and lives is to give the Mexican banditti and the Mexican regular troops A THOROUGH BEATING, and to take possession of Mexico and establish the rule of law and order WITH THE STRONG HAND.

THE ARMY SHOULD HAVE SEIZED THE RAILWAYS AND BASES IN NORTHERN MEXICO LAST MARCH.

THE NAVY SHOULD HAVE SEIZED THE GULF PORTS AND THE PACIFIC PORTS AT THE SAME TIME.

That time is past. That opportunity of opportunities has been fooled away.

But the task still remains to be done, AND WE OUGHT TO DO IT NOW.

Citizens, it is a wicked shame that our army should be left in Mexico, WITH ITS HANDS TIED, while the enemy is permitted unmolested to assemble forces and to occupy strategic positions WHICH WILL COST THE LIVES of thousands of our boys.

Do you want to know how your soldiers—men and commanders alike—feel about being thus treated by their own government? They cannot tell you, but we can.

They are SICK WITH SHAME and FURIOUS WITH ANGER.

And why should they not be?

What have they been permitted to do, except to dance attendance upon the tender sensibilities and insolent orders of Senor Carranza?

There they stand, with arms in their hands—and all their skill and courage made a mock of by jeering Mexicans—waiting, waiting, for the permission of their own government to play a soldier's part, and so far waiting in vain!

Citizens, if this is the result of politics, the sooner we have done with politics the better. For it is time now to redeem the honor of the nation and to fulfil our duty to mankind by advancing our victorious standards in Mexico.

Now, there is nothing left to do in decency, in honor and in duty, but to speak with the voices of our army and our navy.

Why, citizens, we CANNOT withdraw from Mexico.

Then why any longer this dangerous hesitation?

We MUST intervene. There is no possible question of that necessity.

Then, why continue to make the task bloodier and more costly by inexcusable and indefensible delays?

Citizens, there lies our duty—there, south of the Rio Grande.

The Guard has been ordered to mobilize.

Now let it go to the front, where it should have been months ago.

Then call the volunteers to the colors.

It is desperately necessary that our army in Mexico be backed by reinforcements, and backed it must be.

And if this means war, why, then, let it be war!

Our cause is just, our purpose is righteous, and we will make war this time in such a fashion that no Mexican chiefs will ever again murder our people, invade our soil or insult our flag.

Speak to your President and to your Congress, Americans, and tell them your patience is exhausted.

Have we not endured enough of injury and insult and shame?

Must we keep on eating dirt at these bandits' commands?

Or shall we beat these braggarts to their knees and make them fear our strength since they cannot appreciate our forbearance?

There is only one answer to these questions, citizens, that becomes an American.

That answer is "Fight!"

Just one word, citizens—and not one American of us all too proud to say it.

Speak it, countrymen, speak it to your President and to your Congress!
